State-paid abortions stopped by Teasdale

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) - State financing of abortions other than those needed to save the life of the mother has been ordered stopped bu Gov. Joseph Teasdale.

Teasdale's directive to the state Departmetn of Social Services on Wednesday came only hours after a panel of three fedral judges in St. Louis dismissed athree-year old court challenge that had halted implementation of a state law banning public financing of most abortions.

In a two-paragraph letter to Social Service Director James Walsh, the governor ordered new rules and regulations to be issued for enforcement of that 1973 law prohibiting use of Medicaid funds for abortions that were "not medically indicated."

"Missouri's policy in this area to be reflected in these regulations is that state funds will not be expended for non-therapeutic abortions," the directive said.

"We will continue to make available funds for abortions where the attending physician certifies that a full-term pregnancy and childbirth in his medical opinion could lead to the cessation of the mother's life," the directive added.

Wlash, in an interview, said the regulations will follow the language in the letter, but would probably take several weeks until they would become effective. He said the state financing of most abortions for poor women should halt by the end of August at the latest.

"It's too bad that another one should occur," Walsh said of the procedural delay in beginning the ban, "But we have to follow the rule-making process."

Federal Judges Roy Harper, James Meredith and Noah Webster dismissed the court challenged to the 1973 state law following the U.S. Supreme Court decision last month that states were not obligated to finance abortions for poor women, if the mother's life was not in danger.

In the 2½ years the state had been under the three-judge panel's court order to finance the abortions, an estimated 5,000 abortions costing about $375,000 were paid for through the Medicaid program.

In 1975, the Missouri Legislature became the first in the nation to ask Congress to call a Consitutional Convention for the adoption of an anti-abortion amendment to the consitution.

That petition came after several efforts failed to restrict abortions following the 1973 landmark U. S. Supreme Court decision prohibiting the state regulation of abortion during the first three months of pregnancy.

Critics of the high court's latest ruling say it negates most of the value of that 1973 decision, which they claimed opened up abortions for poor women through Medicaid financing. They said women who had money could obtain abortions even before the 1973 ruling.

Father and son feared drowned

POPLAR BLUFF--- A Cahokia, Ill. man and his son are feared drowned, following an incident that occurred 10 miles north of here in the Black River along highway 67.

The Butler County Sheriff's office said Alfred Campbell, 40, and his 14-year-old son, Dale Campbell, were swimming about 2 p.m. Wednesday when they were pulled into deep water by a strong current and apparently drowned.

The water at the spot is approximately 100 feet deep.

The bodies have not yet been recovered. The Butler County Sheriff's Department, a rescue squad and the Civil Defense were still searching for the bodies, at noon today.

Mobile home burglarized

PORTAGEVILLE---The New Madrid County Sheriff's office has reported a burglary of a mobile home three miles north of Portageville. The home of Harry King, was entered sometime between midnight Tuesday and 8 a.m. Wednesday.

Officers said entry to the home was gained through a front window. Items listed as missing from the residence were a cassette player valued at $260; two speakers valued at $160 each; an amplifier valued at $165; and a turntable valued at $260.

The investigation is continuing by the New Madrid County Sheriff's office.

Fun days start Monday

LILBOURN--Summer Fun Days will begin in Lilbourn Monday and continue with a variety of activities throughout the entire week.

The event is sponsored annually by the Lilbourn Kiwanis Club and Volunteer Fire Department.

On Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. the Little King and Queen contest gets under way. At the same time the next night, "The Glory Sounds" and the Hamilton family will sing on stage. At 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, it will be the Kiddie Parade and at 8:30 p.m. Friday the new Miss New Madrid County will be crowned.

Saturday night is reserved to recognize Lilbourn's "Man of the Year" who will be announced at that time.

A carnival midway and cash prizes are a part of every night's activities.

Contestants are welcome to participate in the kiddie parade, junior king and queen contest and the county queen contest.

East Prairie without water

EAST PRAIRIE---City residents were without water from about 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday, because of an electrical power outage at the water treatment plant on Cutliph Avenue.

Electrical wires were burned after a transformer in the area reportedly overheated and caught fire, disrupting power at about 11:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Sikeston water quality meets U.S. standards

The new federal guidelines on water quality will have little effect on Sikeston, according to Richard Lucy, water and sewer superintendent for Board of Municipal Utilities.

The guidelines, announced recently by the Environmental Protection Agency, set water quality standards for all Missouri communities.

The EPA took the action after the state legislature failed to adopt similar standards, he said.

Sikeston's drinking water quality meets the new standards, Lucy said.

The Federal guidelines set standards and tests for bacteria, inorganic and organic compounds and turbidity.

Turbidity is the clarity of the water and the guidelines require that the water be nearly crystal clear.

Lucy said the water department will run most of the tests, contracting with independent laboraitories only those tests which determine the level of organic pesticides.

Those complex tests are run every two years. The test equipment costs $16,000, he said.

The water department runs 15 tests daily, and if any of those tests fail to meet federal guidelines, the department is now required to notify its customers, Lucy said.

But meeting those standards will not be a problem, because Sikeston draws its water from deep wells, Lucy said.

Those communities which draw water from the Mississippi River, such as Cape Girardeau, will have more trouble meeting the standards, he said.

Small communities will have trouble being able to afford the testing equipment, he said.

The tests will cost Sikeston $6,000 a year over the next 10 years, Lucy said. Much of that cost comes from the equipment purchases.

Burglary suspect is arrested

Alonzo Patterson, 213 Young St., was arrested Wednesday for burglarizing the Polly Beecham home, 1607 W. North St., sometime between June 30 and Sunday.

Another man is being sought, according to Department of Public Safety Detective Lt. Jack Patterson.

Taken in the burglary were stereo and television sets and a purse containing $40. Everything but the money has been recovered, Lt. Patterson said.

The suspect was stopped by two public safety officers Saturday morning as he walked down the street carrying a purse.

He claimed the purse belonged to his wife. The Officers let him go because no burglary had been reported at the time.

Corps asked to prevent area levy damage

CHARLESTON---Representatives of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers met Wednesday afternoon with two members of Scott County Levy District No. 2 for a fact-finding session on problems relating to possible damage to the levy at approximatley Mile 30 on the Mississippi River.

According to Paul Stricker, president of the levy district, a "critical" problem is being created in a bend of the Mississippi River about one mile upstream from SeMo Grain Co., located about 12 miles north of Charleston.

Stricker and Oliver Kirkpatrick, also a member of the levy board, related to the Corps their feelings that if something is not done to relieve pressure on this particular area, a scouring effect could conceivably cut through the tree screen, posing a threat of water undercutting the nearby levy.

It was pointed out that rip-wrapping along and to the top of the riverbank is needed to prevent sluffing of the bank.

One possible cause of the problem could be dikes around the bend on the Illinois side of the river, which could be throwing fill into the river bend. A sandbar there is now some four feet higher than it was in 1973 when the area had a very severe flood.

Removal or shortening of the dike could possibly cause the river to wash away some of the sandbar and lessen the pressure on the bend in question. Another suggestion was to widen the river channel in this particular area. The channel now runs extremely close to the bank in the bend.

During the discussion, the corps members assured the board of their interest in the problem and of their obligation to do everything possible to protect the levy and find a solution to the problem.

A visual tour of the problem area concluded the meeting.

Representing the Corps were Jimmie Graham and Max S. Lamb of the Mississippi River Commission at Vicksburg, Miss.; Gordon Butler Jr., Cairo, Ill. area engineer; Bobby Little John of the Memphis, Tenn. District; and Bill Genova, Claude Strauser and Lester Boyer of the St. Louis district.

Results of the meeting and visual inspection and any recommendation for a feasible solution which the group may compile will be forwarded to the Mississippi River Commission for study and future action.

Citizens protest beer garden in Oran park

ORAN---The City Council Tuesday night heard from 33 citizens protesting the council's granting approval to the Oran Jaycees to establish a beer garden in the City Park during their Community Day festivities July 31.

The Council also passed an ordinance prohibiting loitering or trespassing on public or posted private property; heard an oral resignation from alderman Charlie Liles; appointed an auxiliary police officer; agreed to assist in blacktopping tow roads; and accepted for consideration the annual city audit from Donald Barklage of Hoche Barklage Co. of Cape Girardeau.

In presenting the completed audit, Barklage said the city is basically in good shape and the main suggestions by his firm would be for the city to adopt a double-entry bookkeeping system and to transfer $1,726, which is being carried under the general revenue account, to the proper accounts.

After hearing from the auditor, Mayor Evans suggested that Barklage meet with the council next month to further explain the double-entry bookkeeping procedure.

Barklage said he would meet with the council on a date it selects. He then presented a bill in the amount of $2,000 for the audit services, which the council did not act upon.

At 8:40 p.m. Mayor Evans moved the meeting from City Hall to the Oran Public Library next door to meet with the citizens who had come to protest the beer garden.

The library building was needed because of its larger meeting area.

Starting discussion with the group, Mayor Evans read the portion of the City Council's June 7, 1977 meeting that pertained to the granting of a section of the City Park to be roped off and used by the Oran Jaycees for a beer garden.

At the June 7 meeting, members of the Oran Jaycees asked the council for permission to operate the beer garden, which would dispense free beer to contestants entered in the activities to be held at the Jayces Community Day, July 31 at the City Park and would be controlled by the Jaycees.

Mayor Evans read that approval was given on condition that the beer garden area be located in the back of the park and roped off, also that the beer not be allowed to be removed from the roped-off area.

After reading the minutes, he asked if the group had a spokesperson. Verlin Jackson said he was a spokesman for the group, which consisted of citizens and members of the Trinity Methodist Church, First Baptist Church and United Pentecostal Church, all of Oran.

Jackson said the group was in opposition to beer being dispensed in the public park and that on his checking the park on July 2 it was found that signs were posted that stated there was no drinking of alcoholic beverages allowed in the park by city ordinance. He asked the council if the ordinance was still in effect and if it was, how it could be changed?

Mayor Evans replied that the ordinance was still in effect, the same as some other ordinances which have been on the books for years and not strictly enforced.

Open discussion followed in which the opposing group maintained that if there was an ordinance against drinking public places it should be enforced, not condoned, which is what the city would be doing if the beer garden is allowed.

Mayor Evans said approval was given because the Jaycees are a civic organization and the beer will not be sold.

Alderman C. C. Parks made a motion that the city rescind the approval granted for the beer garden in June. Alderman Melton Harris seconded the motion.

Before the council could take action, Ken Schlitt, president of the Oran Jaycees, who was also present, told the gathering that his organization then would not hold the beer garden in the park, but would hold it on private property.

The council then approved rescinding the granting of the beer garden in the park.

Mayor Evans then directed the council to return to City Hall to continue the meeting.

After returning to City Hall, alderman Charlie Liles submitted his resignation from the City Council, which the Council did not accept.

Mayor Evans then read an ordinance pertaining to loitering and trespassing on city streets and property and on posted private property, which would prohibit the loitering or trespassing by anyone on public streets or property and within 500 feet of private property (churches, schools, etc.) which were posted.

Violation of this ordinance will be considered a misdemeanor and persons convicted of this violation will be subject to a fine between $5 and $100 or a jail sentence ranging from one day to 30 days or both fine and imprisonment.

The council approved a final reading of the ordinance.

In other business, auxiliary police commander Clarence Curtis presented an application submitted by Howard Stevens for appointment to the Oran Auxiliary Police Department, which the council approved.

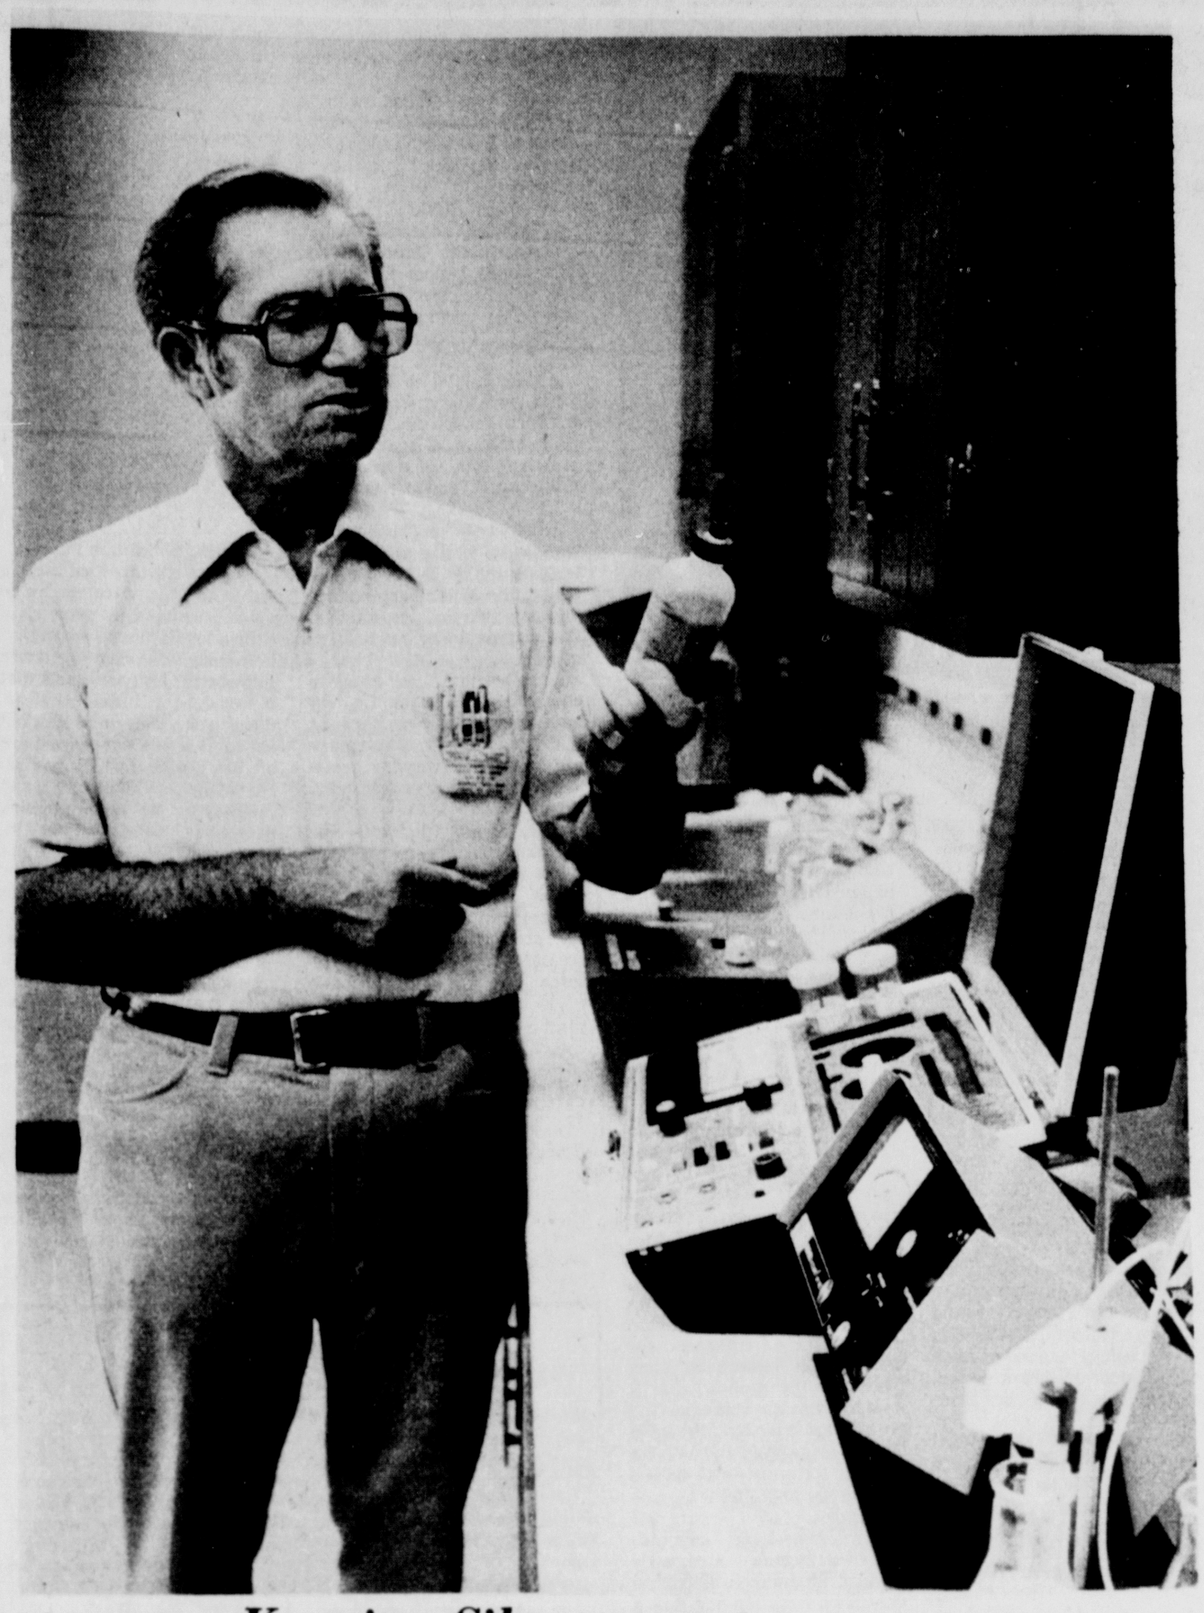

The council approved a contribution of $100 as the city's portion for the blacktopping of Brinker Hill on the north edge of the city after Bernard DeBrock, a resident living on the hill, said other residents had contributed a like share for the blacktopping project.

Also the council agreed to join the Oran Special Road District in blacktopping the road on the west side of the City Park, which is a joint maintained road. The blacktopping would cover the area from Highway W, south to the entrance to the ballpark.

GRAND COMRADE LEONID?

..We've always assumed Leonid Brezhnev was intelligent, or he wouldn't have been able to climb to the top in the Kremlin and stay there, and thus we've been puzzled by his making so many state visits abroad.

A state visit is one of the most tiresome events devised by the human mind. consisting as it does of 21-gun salutes, national anthems, security precautions, official banquets, tendentious toasts and diplomatic negotiations, which are the most boring talks in Christendom.

However, it turns out Brezhnev has an incentive to travel. He's a collector of fast and fancy foreign cars and much like medieval potentates giving a jeweled sword to a royal visitor, his hosts have been filling up the Brezhnev garage.

Among other luxury vehicles, he has a Citroen-Maserati from an earlier visit to France and a Caddy and Continental from his hobnobbing with then President Nixon.

On his just-concluded visit to Paris he was presented with a green Matra sports car designed for road driving. Ever the perfect guest, Brezhnev said he didn't like green and paint it blue.

ROTC IS BACK IN BUSINESS

Military careers — especially via the college Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) — are beginning to look better to young Americans facing a tight job market.

Army ROTC, largest of the three run by the military services and which wilted under the torrent of student protests from 165,430 cadets in 1967 to 33,220 in 1973, has grown steadily each year since. Enrollment now stands at 54,671.

Three reasons are given. First, the Vietnam War, which generated the protests, is over. A new college generation is looking at ROTC with eyes unjaundiced by disaffection with that wretched conflict.

Then, too, last year's bicentennial celebration brought what ROTC officials refer to as "a tinge of patriotism" to college student.

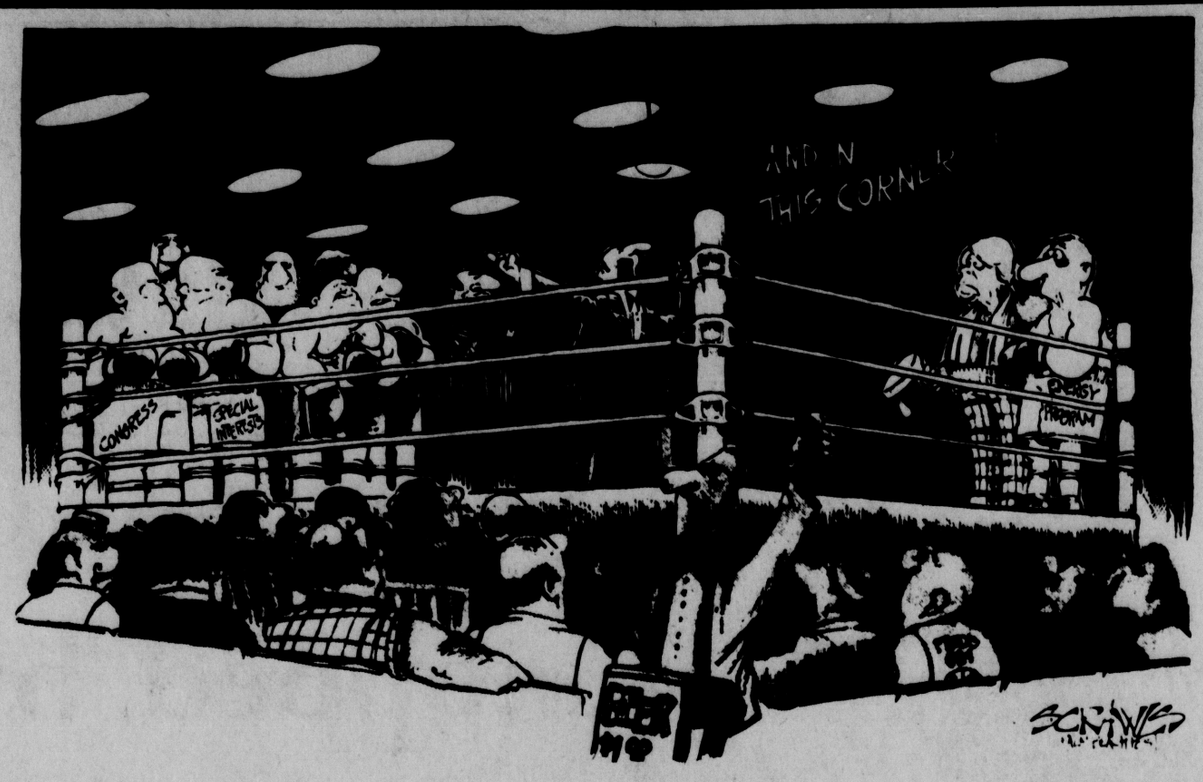

Most important, perhaps, is the fact that these days the military is a beneficient employer. New second lieutenants start at about $12,000 a year, plus such cushy perquisites as commissary privileges, free medical care and the like.

Add to that the fact that even a second lieutenant begins as a boss — in a manner of speaking — and the total sum of allurement to the military life is not to be denied, especially at a time of relatively high unemployment, when holders of academic doctorates often end up as stockroom clerks.

A successful four-year tour of active duty as a reserve officer is a pretty impressive credential that the young person has learned the principles of leadership and management.

These are undeniably marketable skills in a future civilian job market. Students entering college next fall should give ROTC serious consideration for their own good as well as their country's.

Union Electric of St. Louis has delayed the nuclear plant construction in Callaway County, and completion of a plant at St. Louis that would burn garbage instead of the usual fuels. It says that fault les with the people of Missouri, who approved a proposition in November that prevents them from charging construction costs against the consumer until a plant is actually in operation.

What it boils down to is that they would have done their building with "no-interest" money provided by customers, if the proposal had been defeated. Not many of us can build or expand our business by using money on which we pay no interest. Naturally, the company officials don't like to have to borrow money and pay interest on it, and are miffed at Missouri people, who decided they should.

There is another side to that also. If they could have used customer money, they would not have had to show a new facility is sound economically, or needed for that matter. The customer would have been taking all the chances, while having nothing to say about decisions.

BUT THEY DIDN'T REFUSE THE RAISE

..Nine years after discovery of the huge oilfield at Prudhoe Bay, oil at last is flowing through the 800-mile trans-Alaska pipeline-and the nation has a brand new energy headache.

The problem is that by Oct.1 the pipeline will be transporting 1.2 million barrels a day, twice as much as West Coast refineries can absorb. Moreover, no pipeline is ready to move the surplus to the Midwest, where it is much needed.

Clearly, a permanent solution must include a pipeline connecting the 'west 'coast with crude-hungry midcontinent refineries. Until that is done oil industry officials and President Carter's energy advisers have three temporary ways to go, unfortunately none of them attractive.

The choices are to sell unneeded Alaska crude to Japan in return for Middle East oil delivered to the East Coast: to ship it in tankers through the Panama Canal to the Gulf Coast: or to relieve the glut by shutting down the Naval Reserve oilfield at Elk Hills, Calif.

Purely from an economic standpoint, selling some 600,000 barrels a day to Japan makes sense. However, the political and psychological costs would be excessive.

Too many people believe there is no oil shortage and the "crisis" is a ripoff engineered by a greedy industry. Seeing Alaska crude flowing to Japan would reinforce such suspicions and make the public less likely to cooperate in energy conservation.

Also, trading Alaskan for Middle Eastern crude would keep this country highly vulnerable to another oil embargo,, hardly a sound policy.

Since supertankers can't use the Panama Canal, the Alaska surplus would have to move to Gulf ports in small vessels: an expensive and wasteful procedure. However, this probably will turn out to be the least bad temporary measure.

Closing down the Elk Hills would deprive the country of 250,000 barrels a day of domestic production and make us more dependent on the unstable Middle East.

With about a year of work a gass pipeline from Midland, Texas to Long Beach, Calif. could be "turned around" and converted to carry Alaska crude. That would be an excellent step since Midland could easily be connected to pipelines serving the Midwest.

However, California authorities and environmental radicals are fighting the unloading of tankers at Long Beach on the grounds that it would add to air pollution. The protests are a bit reminiscent of those that delayed the 'Alaska pipeline for years and helped bloat its cost to $7.7 billion.

Because of what it called "unreasonable" demands from California air-quality officials, Exxon has reluctantly withdrawn from the ong Beach project. It is to be hoped that the Carter administration will not permit this pipeline to flall victim to regulatory sabotage.

The plain truth is that a country which can send a space shuttle flying about piggyback on a 747 has the technology to unload oil safely at Long Beach. Each barrel of Alaska oil used in this country means $14 not sent abroad and that much less leverage by foreign suppliers.

DEPENDABLE STATISTICS

The Statistician was dilating on the importance and achievements of his profession. "Now, for instance," he said, " how many sick people are there in this city? You may think that it would be a difficult and arduous task to determine this, but not so. It is very simple. Inquire of 100 people how they feel. Divide the population by 100 and multiply by the number of sick people in the 100 you interviewed. The answer will not be far wrong."

Two men who had listened to hm resolved to try the experiment. When they met again, as agreed, one said, with a triumphant smile: "Statistics prove that this is the healthiest city in the country. There is not a sick person in it!"

"You're crazy!" replied the other, gloomily. "Everybody in it is sick!"

Both insisted that they had followed the statistician's formula. But it developed that the first man had made his inquires at a baseball game. The other had visited the wards of a hospital.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Anita Bryant Roasted:

Entertainment Unions insisting pro-homosexual clauses be written into New Labor Contracts

NEW YORK— Not so very gay is the searing controversy over the role and place of homosexuals in industry, commerce, the job market, the schools, housing complexes and -- in the past few days -- inside the unions.

For the first time this enflamed conflict, this sexual uproar, has reached inside labor.

It all flared swiftly. On Friday, June 24, the high council of the 20,000-member Actors' Equity Assoication met in anger. It denounced the embattled Anita Bryant for her campaign against anti-discrimination protection of homosexuals. It instructed Equity's executive secretary Don Grody to condemn fellow member Anita Bryant publicly.

He did. In contemptuous tones Grody scalded the Dade County, Fla., singer.

Grody's wallop came in an open letter to the woman who has whipped up natinoal and international attention with her campaign against homosexuals. They in turn have shown strength of numbers with parades last Sunday on Fifth Avenue here, and in Miami, Los Angeles and cities up to Seattle and across again to Chicago.

Writing in the name of Actors' Equity, which is an affiliate of the Four A's, the 70,000-member Associated Actors and Artistes of America (AFL-CIO), Grody's language roared.

"Actors Equity has for many years taken a strong stand against discrimination," wrote Grody. "We feel that we have been a forceful voice in the fight to end inequality on both sides of the footlights.

"Anti-discrimination clauses are a part of all our employment agreements. This rejection of discrimination includes not only discrimination because of ethnic or national origin, but also discrimination against an individual becaue of his sexual or affectional preferences.

"The Council of Actors' Equity Assn. has asked me to express their dismay that you, a fellow member, would so outspokenly embrace a tenet so contrary to the ideals of his Association."

Then, on the following Sunday, th 40th annual national convention of the 28,000-member American Federation of Television and Radio Artists (AFTRA) (also a Four A affiliate) announced that it had instructed the union's negotiators "to seek to include in all anti-discrimination clauses that exist in AFTRA contracts (with broadcase statos -- VF) the phrase 'affectional or sexual preferences.' "

And it added that the union "reaffirmed the rights of all AFTRA members to pursue their private and professional lives without hindrance or interference as longas that pursuit is not in violation of any AFTRA codes." The word codes refers to union regulations and contracts.

On Tuesday, June 28, Actors' Equity openedits major (Broadway) contract negotiations with th League of New York Theatres and Producers, Inc. Traditionally, both sides bargain hard. But not on this one. Early in the table talk there was agreement aht the standard anit-discrimination clause would be extended.

As it stands now the clause reads: "There shall be no discrimination against actor or applican for a part or a position by reason of race, color, creed, sex or national origin." Nowthere will be adeded the phrase, "... or by reason of his affectional or sexual preference."

Thus only two days after Equity's sister union, AFTRA, urged its own locals to insert the clause in all new contracts, the "legitimate" theater AFL-CIO affiliate wrote it into its own pact -- over shich bargaining is far from done. But both sides quickly inked it in.

Thus many issues race up front of this new era story. Anita Bryant, an Actors' Equity member, has been denounced for her philosophical, ideological or political pursuit. Choose what words you would to describe Mrs. Bryant's firery drive. That is the union's right.

But what some observers crriticize is the reference to her membership in the union. These critics read this as an implied threat to the singer. After all, EQuity, AFTRA and the othe six Four A affiliates, including the Screen Actor's Guild, have nutual union membership. Some performers pay dues to several of the entertainment unions. Their overall national leader is AFL-CIO vice president Fred O'Neal, who played the black African opposite Tarzan in some of those movies.

So there are those who ask what impact this open letter from a union leader to a rank-and-file member will have on the employment of Ms. Bryant -- who now is reported in Washington circles considering shifting her home to nearby Virginia.

And how will all this affect the national Equal Employment Opportunity Commission now headed by the militant ex-New Yorker, Eleanor Holmes Norton? On EEOC insider predicted that the commission probably will conform its efforts with the thrust o the AFTRA-Equity position.

And there are national labor chiefs whose unions cover mass industries who now see new complictions making their nationwide collective bargaining efforts more difficult and complex. Thousands of new grievances are expected.

It's all out in the open now -- like the Sunday, June 26, homosexual parades in the nation's biggest cities.

And Actors' Equity hasn't, at this writing, heard from Anita Bryant. She isn't known to be the silent lady. This story may have far more implications than now appear. Times sure are changing.

WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE

WASHINGTON -- The rest of the country always thinks of Californians as strange people, It isn't really their fault. There is something in the water out there that does it to them.

Walpole, who lives in Marin County, just wrote me a letter explaining why people in Northern California are going off their rockers.

"We were told," wrote Walpole, "that there was a drought up here and we had to conserve on water. So we did exactly what they asked us to. We rationed our bath water, we stopped watering our lawns, we even thought twice before flushing the toilet. When it came to water conservation we rose to the challenge.

"We were a dirty, but pround people. We had 'ring around the collar,' but it was a small price to pay for saving the most precious liquid known to man.

"Our wives hung up their laundry with 'tatletale gray' but the neighbors never told them they were using the wrong detergent. We drank wine instead of water, we swam in swimming polls filled with algea, Our children wore stains on their clothes to school, and learned to brush their teeth only once a day. We learned the true meaning of the war-time slogan, 'Take a shower with a friend.'

"So what happened? The first thing they did was raise our water rates.

"When I called up the water department to find out why, the man replied, 'Because people are using much less water and our revenues are down. We had to raise our rates to compensate for the lost income caused by the conservation measures we put into effect.'

"I said to him 'You mean to tell me the less water we use the more we have to pay for it?'"

"'That should be obvious to anyone,' he said in a huff. Somebody has to pay for the water the people don't use.'

"'But that's crazy,' I yelled at him. 'You people told us to cut down on water and we did. Now you say we have to be penalized for doing without it.'

"'We didn't expect everyone to turn off their spigots. You people are all overachievers. We asked you to cut down on the use of water, but we didn't plan on you saving so much water that we would lose money on it. The water department can't run without revenues.'

"I said 'Well why didn't you tell us how much water to conserve? '

"He said ' We wanted you to conserve as much as possible.'

"'That's what we did,' I screamed at him.

"He replied, 'Then you have to pay for it. The only way the rates will come down is if you start using water again. You have to use up your allotments, or we may have to take drastic measures, such as fining and penalizing you for not watering your lawn or taking enough baths. I hate to say this but we're ashamed of all of you.'

"Well, it hasn't been easy on any of us," Walpole continued in his letter. "Once you're hooked on water conservation it's hard to get off it. I've got the lawn hoses going all day long, the water is now running in the tub, and we're washing our clothes three times a day. I doubt if it will be enough to use up our allotment in time for our next water bill. But we're doing the best we can.

"The last thing I want to do is be fined for saving water that the district has to sell us if it wants to stay in business."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Nixon Administration Could Have Stopped Oil Price Rise

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- In sheer dimensions, the Watergate scandal will take a back page in history to the oil scandal. We now have evidence that Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger could have prevented the spectacular oil price increase, which has dislocated the world economy and sent all prices spiraling.

The evidence is contained in secret documents, which we have studied closely. We have also interviewed key Nixon Administration officials familiar with the backstage developments. Here is the incredible story:

Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil producer, wanted to hold down prices. The Saudis foresaw the ruinous effect high oil prices would have on the western world. But they were under intense pressure from the other oil powers to join in the oil price squeeze.

The Saudis appealed to the United States, therefore, to help them keep the lid on oil prices. They realized that Washington had the leverage to restrain the shah of Iran. For the shah literally owed his throne to the United States, which has also been the source of his power since World War II.

The Saudis, quite logically, tended to judge U.S. intent by the shah's attitude. They were puzzled, therefore, over his clamor for exorbitant oil prices. All it should take, they reasoned, was a little U.S. pressure to bring the shah into line.

The Saudis repeatedly urged then-U.S. Ambassador James Akins, according to Akins' own secret account, "to put pressure on the shah to cooperate with Saudi Arabia and reduce the oil prices." Yet the shah kept calling for outrageous price increases.

Finally, the late King Faisal took up the problem directly with Kissinger in 1974. According to a secret account of their conversation, "the king urged him directly to take up (oil prices) with the shah, and the secretary agreed to do so."

Kissinger reported back to King Faisal on Feb. 15, 1975, that he had tried to persuade the shah to reduce oil prices. Sources close to Kissinger have told us this was a lie. The Secretary of State made no attempt, they say, to restrain the shah.

Later the shah himself told the Saudis that Kissinger had not brought up oil prices with him. Adding another jigsaw piece, Ambassador Akins offered this secret intelligence:

"The Iranian had told (the Saudis) we were completely unconcerned about any price rise. The shah has also told this to numerous oilmen as proof that the U.S. is at least indifferent to an increase in oil prices. In any case, the Saudis have seen no account from any American source that we in any way tried to pressure the shah to back off his extreme position on oil crisis."

Ultimately, the Saudis became convinced that the Nixon Administration secretly favored the oil gouge. They gave up their attempts, therefore, to stand alone against the greedy oil potentates. The Saudi oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, later explained this to then-Treasury Secretary William Simon in a letter dated Sept. 3, 1975, and marked "strictly personal."

"I would like you to know," wrote Yamani, "that there are those amongst us who think that the U.S. Administration does not really object to an increase in oil prices. There are even those who think that you encourage it for obvious political reasons and that any official position taken to the contrary is merely to cover up this fact."

An alarmed Simon wrote a six-page memo to Gerald Ford who had replaced Richard Nixon in the White House. The Saudi royal family had informed him personally, wrote Simon, that "Saudi Arabia would press OPEC for lower prices" but that they "need the U.S. to help turn the shah around."

Simon added that the Saudi oil minister had also "written me several times along the same lines. Yamani and others have said they wonder whether, in fact, we want lower oil prices since we never even raise the subject with the shah."

We can't say whether Ford ever asked Kissinger to speak to the shah. But as long as Kissinger remained Secretary of State, our sources say, he never brought pressure on the shah to hold down oil prices.

The Saudis, meanwhile waited for Kissinger to be removed from power and then made another attempt to hold the line on oil prices. They refused to go along with the full price increase and threatened to boost their production to 10 million barrels a day. This would be sold on the world market, they announced, at no additional price.

But bad weather, a rash of fires and technical difficulties prevented the Saudis from reaching the 10-million-barrel goal. The other oil powers, with the shah leading the pack, also hounded the Saudis to raise prices.

The shah howled that the Saudi action was costing Iran $6 million a day in lost oil revenues. Any increase in Saudi production at Iran's expense, he warned, would constitute "an act of aggression."

This was followed by an exchange of delegations between the two countries. In Saudi Arabia, the Iranian representatives urged the Saudi government to reverse its policies. In Iran, the Saudi emissaries let the shah know that the royal family didn't appreciate his intemperate outbursts.

The shah quieted down, and the Saudis began behind-the-scenes negotiations. They finally agreed to raise their prices another five per cent, bringing them equal to the world price, if the other oil powers would cancel an announced five per cent rise, our sources understand.

Meanwhile, many nations have been forced to borrow money to pay their staggering oil bills. Now they are running out of credit; yet the price of crude is continuing to climb. This has caused grave alarm in the backrooms of government. Troubled strategists fear the international financial system may break down, with a crash that could plunge the western world into chaos.

Also, trading Alaskan for Middle Eastern crude would keep this country highly vulnerable to another oil embargo,, hardly a sound policy.

Since supertankers can't use the Panama Canal, the Alaska surplus would have to move to Gulf ports in small vessels: an expensive and wasteful procedure. However, this probably will turn out to be the least bad temporary measure.

Closing down the Elk Hills would deprive the country of 250,000 barrels a day of domestic production and make us more dependent on the unstable Middle East.

With about a year of work a gass pipeline from Midland, Texas to Long Beach, Calif. could be "turned around" and converted to carry Alaska crude. That would be an excellent step since Midland could easily be connected to pipelines serving the Midwest.

However, California authorities and environmental radicals are fighting the unloading of tankers at Long Beach on the grounds that it would add to air pollution. The protests are a bit reminiscent of those that delayed the 'Alaska pipeline for years and helped bloat its cost to $7.7 billion.

Because of what it called"unreasonable" demands from California air-quality officials, Exxon has reluctantly withdrawn from the ong Beach project. It is to be hoped that the Carter administration will not permit this pipeline to flall victim to regulatory sabotage.

The plain truth is that a country which can send a space shuttle flying about piggyback on a 747 has the technology to unload oil safely at Long Beach. Each barrel of Alaska oil used in this country means $14 not sent abroad and that much less leverage by foreign suppliers.

Last summer, during our vacation at a small village on the Atlantic coast, we went fishing with a local inhabitant. While we were trolling, he recounted the generations of his ancestors who had sailed the seas. Jokingly, I said, "I daresay you could trace your family right back to Noah's Ark."

"No," he replied with a perfectly straight face. "I don't think so. You see, we've always had our own boat."

Jones was having his first date with Miss Smith, and was utterly captivated by her. She was beautiful and intelligent, and as dinner proceeded, he was further impressed by her faultless taste.

As he hesitated over the after-dinner drink, she said,"Oh, let's have sherry rather than brandy. When I sip sherry, it transports me from the everyday scene. The flavor, the aroma bring to mind a kind of faerie bit of nature: a hilly filed bathed in soft sundhine, a clump of trees in the middle distance, a small brook curving across the foreground. This, together with the fancied lowing of cattle, creates a kind of peace and serenity, a dovetailing of the world into a beautiful entirety. Brandy, on the other hand, makes me belch."

DEPENDABLE STATISTICS

The Statistician was dilating on the importance and achievements of his profession. "Now, for instance," he said, " how many sick people are there in this city? You may think that it would be a difficult and arduous task to determine this, but not so. It is very simple. Inquire of 100 people how they feel. Divide the population by 100 and multiply by the number of sick people in the 100 you interviewed. The answer will not be far wrong."

Two men who had listened to hm resolved to try the experiment. When they met again, as agreed, one said, with a triumphant smile:"Statistics prove that this is the healthiest city in the country. There is not a sick person in it!"

"You're crazy!" replied the other, gloomily. "Everybody in it is sick!"

Both insisted that they had followed the statistician's formula. But it developed that the first man had made his inquires at a baseball game. The other had visited the wards of a hospital.

Inside Labor

Anita Bryant Roasted:
Entertainment Unions insisting pro-homosexual clauses be written into New Labor Contracts

NEW YORK— Not so very gay is the searing controversy over the role and place of homosexuals in industry, commerce, the job market, the schools, housing complexes and -- in the past few days -- inside the unions.

For the first time this enflamed conflict, this sexual uproar, has reached inside labor.

It all flared swiftly. On Friday, June 24, the high council of the 20,000-member Actors' Equity Assoication met in anger. It denounced the embattled Anita Bryant for her campaign against anti-discrimination protection of homosexuals. It instructed Equity's executive secretary Don Grody to condemn fellow member Anita Bryant publicly.

He did. In contemptuous tones Grody scalded the Dade County, Fla., singer.

Grody's wallop came in an open letter to the woman who has whipped up natinoal and international attention with her campaign against homosexuals. They in turn have shown strength of numbers with parades last Sunday on Fifth Avenue here, and in Miami, Los Angeles and cities up to Seattle and across again to Chicago.

Writing in the name of Actors' Equity, which is an affiliate of the Four A's, the 70,000-member Associated Actors and Artistes of America (AFL-CIO), Grody's language roared.

"Actors Equity has for many years taken a strong stand against discrimination," wrote Grody. "We feel that we have been a forceful voice in the fight to end inequality on both sides of the footlights.

"Anti-discrimination clauses are a part of all our employment agreements. This rejection of discrimination includes not only discrimination because of ethnic or national origin, but also discrimination against an individual becaue of his sexual or affectional preferences.

"The Council of Actors' Equity Assn. has asked me to express their dismay that you, a fellow member, would so outspokenly embrace a tenet so contrary to the ideals of his Association."

Then, on the following Sunday, th 40th annual national convention of the 28,000-member American Federation of Television and Radio Artists (AFTRA) (also a Four A affiliate) announced that it had instructed the union's negotiators "to seek to include in all anti-discrimination clauses that exist in AFTRA contracts (with broadcase statos -- VF) the phrase 'affectional or sexual preferences.' "

And it added that the union "reaffirmed the rights of all AFTRA members to pursue their private and professional lives without hindrance or interference as longas that pursuit is not in violation of any AFTRA codes." The word codes refers to union regulations and contracts.

On Tuesday, June 28, Actors' Equity openedits major (Broadway) contract negotiations with th League of New York Theatres and Producers, Inc. Traditionally, both sides bargain hard. But not on this one. Early in the table talk there was agreement aht the standard anit-discrimination clause would be extended.

As it stands now the clause reads: "There shall be no discrimination against actor or applican for a part or a position by reason of race, color, creed, sex or national origin." Nowthere will be adeded the phrase, "... or by reason of his affectional or sexual preference."

Thus only two days after Equity's sister union, AFTRA, urged its own locals to insert the clause in all new contracts, the "legitimate" theater AFL-CIO affiliate wrote it into its own pact -- over shich bargaining is far from done. But both sides quickly inked it in.

Thus many issues race up front of this new era story. Anita Bryant, an Actors' Equity member, has been denounced for her philosophical, ideological or political pursuit. Choose what words you would to describe Mrs. Bryant's firery drive. That is the union's right.

But what some observers crriticize is the reference to her membership in the union. These critics read this as an implied threat to the singer. After all, EQuity, AFTRA and the othe six Four A affiliates, including the Screen Actor's Guild, have nutual union membership. Some performers pay dues to several of the entertainment unions. Their overall national leader is AFL-CIO vice president Fred O'Neal, who played the black African opposite Tarzan in some of those movies.

So there are those who ask what impact this open letter from a union leader to a rank-and-file member will have on the employment of Ms. Bryant -- who now is reported in Washington circles considering shifting her home to nearby Virginia.

And how will all this affect the national Equal Employment Opportunity Commission now headed by the militant ex-New Yorker, Eleanor Holmes Norton? On EEOC insider predicted that the commission probably will conform its efforts with the thrust o the AFTRA-Equity position.

And there are national labor chiefs whose unions cover mass industries who now see new complictions making their nationwide collective bargaining efforts more difficult and complex. Thousands of new grievances are expected.

It's all out in the open now -- like the Sunday, June 26, homosexual parades in the nation's biggest cities.

And Actors' Equity hasn't, at this writing, heard from Anita Bryant. She isn't known to be the silent lady. This story may have far more implications than now appear. Times sure are changing.

WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE

WASHINGTON -- The rest of the country always thinks of Californians as strange people, It isn't really their fault. There is something in the water out there that does it to them.

Walpole, who lives in Marin County, just wrote me a letter explaining why people in Northern California are going off their rockers.

"We were told," wrote Walpole, "that there was a drought up here and we had to conserve on water. So we did exactly what they asked us to. We rationed our bath water, we stopped watering our lawns, we even thought twice before flushing the toilet. When it came to water conservation we rose to the challenge.

"We were a dirty, but pround people. We had 'ring around the collar,' but it was a small price to pay for saving the most precious liquid known to man.

"Our wives hung up their laundry with 'tatletale gray' but the neighbors never told them they were using the wrong detergent. We drank wine instead of water, we swam in swimming polls filled with algea, Our children wore stains on their clothes to school, and learned to brush their teeth only once a day. We learned the true meaning of the war-time slogan, 'Take a shower with a friend.'

"So what happened? The first thing they did was raise our water rates.

"When I called up the water department to find out why, the man replied, 'Because people are using much less water and our revenues are down. We had to raise our rates to compensate for the lost income caused by the conservation measures we put into effect.'

"I said to him 'You mean to tell me the less water we use the more we have to pay for it?'"

"'That should be obvious to anyone,' he said in a huff. Somebody has to pay for the water the people don't use.'

"'But that's crazy,' I yelled at him. 'You people told us to cut down on water and we did. Now you say we have to be penalized for doing without it.'

"'We didn't expect everyone to turn off their spigots. You people are all overachievers. We asked you to cut down on the use of water, but we didn't plan on you saving so much water that we would lose money on it. The water department can't run without revenues.'

"I said 'Well why didn't you tell us how much water to conserve? '

"He said ' We wanted you to conserve as much as possible.'

"'That's what we did,' I screamed at him.

"He replied, 'Then you have to pay for it. The only way the rates will come down is if you start using water again. You have to use up your allotments, or we may have to take drastic measures, such as fining and penalizing you for not watering your lawn or taking enough baths. I hate to say this but we're ashamed of all of you.'

"Well, it hasn't been easy on any of us," Walpole continued in his letter. "Once you're hooked on water conservation it's hard to get off it. I've got the lawn hoses going all day long, the water is now running in the tub, and we're washing our clothes three times a day. I doubt if it will be enough to use up our allotment in time for our next water bill. But we're doing the best we can.

"The last thing I want to do is be fined for saving water that the district has to sell us if it wants to stay in business."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Nixon Administration Could Have Stopped Oil Price Rise

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- In sheer dimensions, the Watergate scandal will take a back page in history to the oil scandal. We now have evidence that Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger could have prevented the spectacular oil price increase, which has dislocated the world economy and sent all prices spiraling.

The evidence is contained in secret documents, which we have studied closely. We have also interviewed key Nixon Administration officials familiar with the backstage developments. Here is the incredible story:

Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil producer, wanted to hold down prices. The Saudis foresaw the ruinous effect high oil prices would have on the western world. But they were under intense pressure from the other oil powers to join in the oil price squeeze.

The Saudis appealed to the United States, therefore, to help them keep the lid on oil prices. They realized that Washington had the leverage to restrain the shah of Iran. For the shah literally owed his throne to the United States, which has also been the source of his power since World War II.

The Saudis, quite logically, tended to judge U.S. intent by the shah's attitude. They were puzzled, therefore, over his clamor for exorbitant oil prices. All it should take, they reasoned, was a little U.S. pressure to bring the shah into line.

The Saudis repeatedly urged then-U.S. Ambassador James Akins, according to Akins' own secret account, "to put pressure on the shah to cooperate with Saudi Arabia and reduce the oil prices." Yet the shah kept calling for outrageous price increases.

Finally, the late King Faisal took up the problem directly with Kissinger in 1974. According to a secret account of their conversation, "the king urged him directly to take up (oil prices) with the shah, and the secretary agreed to do so."

Kissinger reported back to King Faisal on Feb. 15, 1975, that he had tried to persuade the shah to reduce oil prices. Sources close to Kissinger have told us this was a lie. The Secretary of State made no attempt, they say, to restrain the shah.

Later the shah himself told the Saudis that Kissinger had not brought up oil prices with him. Adding another jigsaw piece, Ambassador Akins offered this secret intelligence:

"The Iranian had told (the Saudis) we were completely unconcerned about any price rise. The shah has also told this to numerous oilmen as proof that the U.S. is at least indifferent to an increase in oil prices. In any case, the Saudis have seen no account from any American source that we in any way tried to pressure the shah to back off his extreme position on oil crisis."

Ultimately, the Saudis became convinced that the Nixon Administration secretly favored the oil gouge. They gave up their attempts, therefore, to stand alone against the greedy oil potentates. The Saudi oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, later explained this to then-Treasury Secretary William Simon in a letter dated Sept. 3, 1975, and marked "strictly personal."

"I would like you to know," wrote Yamani, "that there are those amongst us who think that the U.S. Administration does not really object to an increase in oil prices. There are even those who think that you encourage it for obvious political reasons and that any official position taken to the contrary is merely to cover up this fact."

An alarmed Simon wrote a six-page memo to Gerald Ford who had replaced Richard Nixon in the White House. The Saudi royal family had informed him personally, wrote Simon, that "Saudi Arabia would press OPEC for lower prices" but that they "need the U.S. to help turn the shah around."

Simon added that the Saudi oil minister had also "written me several times along the same lines. Yamani and others have said they wonder whether, in fact, we want lower oil prices since we never even raise the subject with the shah."

We can't say whether Ford ever asked Kissinger to speak to the shah. But as long as Kissinger remained Secretary of State, our sources say, he never brought pressure on the shah to hold down oil prices.

The Saudis, meanwhile waited for Kissinger to be removed from power and then made another attempt to hold the line on oil prices. They refused to go along with the full price increase and threatened to boost their production to 10 million barrels a day. This would be sold on the world market, they announced, at no additional price.

But bad weather, a rash of fires and technical difficulties prevented the Saudis from reaching the 10-million-barrel goal. The other oil powers, with the shah leading the pack, also hounded the Saudis to raise prices.

The shah howled that the Saudi action was costing Iran $6 million a day in lost oil revenues. Any increase in Saudi production at Iran's expense, he warned, would constitute "an act of aggression."

This was followed by an exchange of delegations between the two countries. In Saudi Arabia, the Iranian representatives urged the Saudi government to reverse its policies. In Iran, the Saudi emissaries let the shah know that the royal family didn't appreciate his intemperate outbursts.

The shah quieted down, and the Saudis began behind-the-scenes negotiations. They finally agreed to raise their prices another five per cent, bringing them equal to the world price, if the other oil powers would cancel an announced five per cent rise, our sources understand.

Meanwhile, many nations have been forced to borrow money to pay their staggering oil bills. Now they are running out of credit; yet the price of crude is continuing to climb. This has caused grave alarm in the backrooms of government. Troubled strategists fear the international financial system may break down, with a crash that could plunge the western world into chaos.

Guerillas admit pipe bombing

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The pipe bomb that killed a woman and wounded 20 other persons at a market in Petah Tiqva was planted by a Palestinian guerrilla group in response to Prime Minister Menahem Begin's policy "of creating new settlements in Palestine," the group said. The radical Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine announced in Beirut that one of its guerrillas planted the bomb that exploded Wednesday.

Carter reassures Jewish leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is reassuring American Jewish leaders that the key goals of U.S. Middle East policy are to win a lasting peace while guaranteeing the security of Israel. Carter met with some 50 Jewish leaders at the White House on Wednesday, telling them he believes a peace settlement should provide for full diplomatic relations between Israel and the Arab nations.

Crime drop credited to snow

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI is crediting a bitterly cold winter and heavy snow as possible factors behind a 9 per cent decrease in the nation's crime rate for the first three months of this year. The law enforcement agency said today that figures show the largest quarterly reduction in crime in the 19 years it has issued crime reports.

Prison fire kills 5, injures 66

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Fire swept through a three-story cellblock at the federal medium security prison here early today, killing five persons and injuring about 66.

Authorities said they believed the five dead were prisoners.

Danbury police Sgt. Robert Lovell said an investigation by fire department and prison officials indicated that the fire was deliberately set, but he would not elaborate. Associate Warden Billy Davis refused to comment on the cause.

However, inmates who lived in the burned-out dormitory said the blaze was caused by an electrical problem in a dormitory washroom. Several inmates said they were trapped inside the burning, smoking room for up to 30 minutes because the doors were locked.

"We had to feel for the bodies, that's how thick the smoke was," said inmate Darnell Kinnard of Washington, D.C.

Hospital authorities said the dead were presumed to be inmates because of the clothing they were wearing. Positive identification of the victims was awaiting fingerprint comparisons.

The fire, which broke out about 1:30 a.m. and was brought under control at 2:50 a.m.

Neutron bomb tests made

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has conducted underground tests in Nevada with the neutron bomb, a government spokesman said today.

"It's a matter of procedure that weapons are tested before production," said a spokesman for the Energy Research and Development Administration.

The neutron bomb, which is designed to kill people with massive doses of radiation while leaving most buildings intact, is designed as a warhead for the Lance missile, which now carries conventional nuclear warheads.

The Pentagon is seekinv funds to put the neutron bomb into production.

The ERDA spokesman said the neutron bomb, known as the enhanced radiation warhead, "is under development now. Nuclear weapons are tested in the development stage before they go into production."

He declined to say when testing began, how often the weapon has been tested or the results. He said the tests have been conducted under treaties requiring that nuclear tests be conducted underground and that no radiation escape.

Cocaine knowledge ' 'modest'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government health experts, concluding a four-year, $4 million study, are saying cocaine can be dangerous to your health, but that very little is known about the drug.

The National Institute of Drug Abuse, in a report released Wednesday, said cocaine poses moderate health problems. But it also said more serious consquences could arise from the legalization and general distribution of the drug.

Dr. Robert L. DuPont, NIDA's director, said " ... our knowledge of cocaine as a drug of abuse is still modest."

In its report, NIDA estimated that almost 8 million Americans have experimented with cocaine at least once, and about 1 million have used it in the past month. The agency said there are indications the drug is becoming more popular.

DuPont said cocaine is not a safe drug and should not be likened to marijuana.

Cocaine is the principal active ingredient of the coca plant, a shrub found in the Andean Mountains of South America. It was purified and isolated in the 19th century and is used medically as a stimulant and local anesthetic.

Hiker's disappearance a puzzle

LONGMIRE, Wash. (AP) — "We haven't found clue one," says the coordinator of the Mt. Rainier National Park search for a 20-year-old hiker last seen a week ago.

Improved weather allowed the use of two helicopters Wednesday in the sixth day of the search. Clear weather was expected to hold through today, but search coordinator John Ritenour said rain was expected by Friday.

The parents of Julie Fillo flew in from Glendale, Mo., a small suburb near St. Louis, and have visited the search's base camp at the 6,400-foot level, Ritenour said.

Ms. Fillo, a park aide who dispensed information and collected fees at the Ohanapecosh entrance, set out last Thursday on an 18-mile overnight hike. She never reached a stone shelter where she was to have spent the night.

BOOK REVIEW

LINDBERGH ALONE. By Brendan Gill. Harcourt Brace Jovanovich. 216 Pages. $11.95.

"The day after which nothing would ever be the same for him was Friday, May 20, 1927. That morning, alone in a little plane powered by a single engine, Charles A. Lindbergh took off from a muddy runway on the outskirts of New York. His destination was Paris."

That Lindbergh made it, became the first person in history to fly nonstop from New York to Paris, is a matter of historical record. Even now, 50 years after that historic flight and in a time when the flight casually is duplicated many times daily, Lindbergh remains a hero. Why?

In this complex, multilayered book, New Yorker writer Brendan Gill probes deeply into the Lindbergh legend and comes up with a well-rounded, satisfying narrative of just who Lindbergh was and what made him run.

An intensely private person, Lindbergh, who once moved his family overseas in order to avoid invasions of that much-sought-after privacy by both the press and the public, left ample written material behind and Gill has analyzed it, boiled it down and come up with this smooth, well-written personality study.

The son of not happily married parents, Lindbergh ran an aimless course as a youth, doing poorly in school and failing in many of the projects he set out upon. But then he was taken by the flying fever. Flying became his obsession and his delight and his whole life changed. The former failure became the great success.

This abrupt change in Lindbergh's fortunes is the nub of Gill's book and he adequately documents and explains how it came about.

It's an engrossing narrative, with the text getting more than adequate support from the many photographs scattered throughout.

Today's news in brief

Surprise strike settled today

DETROIT (AP) — Striking city employes were called back to their jobs today after a tentative agreement on a three-year contract. The settlement to the surprise strike that left about 1.3 million Detroiters without bus service or garbage pickup on Wednesday was reached early today. It was unanimously endorsed by representatives of 19 locals of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, which represents about 8,000 city workers.

Communist pilot asks asylum

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — A Chinese Communist air force squadron commander flew a MIG19 jet fighter to Taiwan today and asked for political asylum, the Nationalist Chinese defense ministry announced. A government spokesman said the defecting pilot, Fan Yuan-yen, 41, took off from the Chintsian military air field in Fukien province and landed at Tainan, in southwest Taiwan.

Ambassador wounded in Paris

PARIS (AP) — Gunfire wounded the Mauritanian ambassador to France this morning as he left his residence, the French Interior Ministry said. Officials said two men made the attack on Ahmed Ghanahalla. Sources said the ambassador was seriously wounded.

Guerillas admit pipe bombing

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The pipe bomb that killed a woman and wounded 20 other persons at a market in Petah Tiqva was planted by a Palestinian guerrilla group in response to Prime Minister Menahem Begin's policy "of creating new settlements in Palestine," the group said. The radical Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine announced in Beirut that one of its guerrillas planted the bomb that exploded Wednesday.

Carter reassures Jewish leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is reassuring American Jewish leaders that the key goals of U.S. Middle East policy are to win a lasting peace while guaranteeing the security of Israel. Carter met with some 50 Jewish leaders at the White House on Wednesday, telling them he believes a peace settlement should provide for full diplomatic relations between Israel and the Arab nations.

Crime drop credited to snow

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI is crediting a bitterly cold winter and heavy snow as possible factors behind a 9 per cent decrease in the nation's crime rate for the first three months of this year. The law enforcement agency said today that figures show the largest quarterly reduction in crime in the 19 years it has issued crime reports.

Prison fire kills 5, injures 66

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Fire swept through a three-story cellblock at the federal medium security prison here early today, killing five persons and injuring about 66.

Authorities said they believed the five dead were prisoners.

Danbury police Sgt. Robert Lovell said an investigation by fire department and prison officials indicated that the fire was deliberately set, but he would not elaborate. Associate Warden Billy Davis refused to comment on the cause.

However, inmates who lived in the burned-out dormitory said the blaze was caused by an electrical problem in a dormitory washroom. Several inmates said they were trapped inside the burning, smoking room for up to 30 minutes because the doors were locked.

"We had to feel for the bodies, that's how thick the smoke was," said inmate Darnell Kinnard of Washington, D.C.

Hospital authorities said the dead were presumed to be inmates because of the clothing they were wearing. Positive identification of the victims was awaiting fingerprint comparisons.

The fire, which broke out about 1:30 a.m. and was brought under control at 2:50 a.m.

Neutron bomb tests made

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has conducted underground tests in Nevada with the neutron bomb, a government spokesman said today.

"It's a matter of procedure that weapons are tested before production," said a spokesman for the Energy Research and Development Administration.

The neutron bomb, which is designed to kill people with massive doses of radiation while leaving most buildings intact, is designed as a warhead for the Lance missile, which now carries conventional nuclear warheads.

The Pentagon is seekinv funds to put the neutron bomb into production.

The ERDA spokesman said the neutron bomb, known as the enhanced radiation warhead, "is under development now. Nuclear weapons are tested in the development stage before they go into production."

He declined to say when testing began, how often the weapon has been tested or the results. He said the tests have been conducted under treaties requiring that nuclear tests be conducted underground and that no radiation escape.

Cocaine knowledge ' 'modest'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government health experts, concluding a four-year, $4 million study, are saying cocaine can be dangerous to your health, but that very little is known about the drug.

The National Institute of Drug Abuse, in a report released Wednesday, said cocaine poses moderate health problems. But it also said more serious consquences could arise from the legalization and general distribution of the drug.

Dr. Robert L. DuPont, NIDA's director, said " ... our knowledge of cocaine as a drug of abuse is still modest."

In its report, NIDA estimated that almost 8 million Americans have experimented with cocaine at least once, and about 1 million have used it in the past month. The agency said there are indications the drug is becoming more popular.

DuPont said cocaine is not a safe drug and should not be likened to marijuana.

Cocaine is the principal active ingredient of the coca plant, a shrub found in the Andean Mountains of South America. It was purified and isolated in the 19th century and is used medically as a stimulant and local anesthetic.

Hiker's disappearance a puzzle

LONGMIRE, Wash. (AP) — "We haven't found clue one," says the coordinator of the Mt. Rainier National Park search for a 20-year-old hiker last seen a week ago.

Improved weather allowed the use of two helicopters Wednesday in the sixth day of the search. Clear weather was expected to hold through today, but search coordinator John Ritenour said rain was expected by Friday.

The parents of Julie Fillo flew in from Glendale, Mo., a small suburb near St. Louis, and have visited the search's base camp at the 6,400-foot level, Ritenour said.

Ms. Fillo, a park aide who dispensed information and collected fees at the Ohanapecosh entrance, set out last Thursday on an 18-mile overnight hike. She never reached a stone shelter where she was to have spent the night.

New balloon pump saves life of heart patient

A new ultra- sophisticated piece of equipment was credited with saving the life of Eugene Fuller of Portageville, a recent patient in the St. Francis Medical Coronary Care Unit.

Known as an intra-aortic balloon pump, the machine utilizes a balloon that is surgically inserted into the aortic artery. The machine is synchronized with the heart and while the heart is at rest, it inflates the balloon, forcing fresh blood and oxygen throughout the body.

Dale M. Blankenship, M.D., president of the St. Francis Medical Staff indicated that this unique piece of equipment is the newest treatment for patients suffering from cardiogenic shock. The mortality rate for these patients has been 92 per cent, but with the availability of the aortic- balloon pump these statistics should reduce significantly to 70 per cent.

The insertion procedure is done in the operating suite by a team of personnel especially trained in the use of the Balloon Pump. The team consists of surgeons, cardiologists, anesthesiologists, operating room nurses, critical carenurses, x-ray technicians, cardiopulmonary technicians and a bio-medical technician. Many of these same people comprise a nursing team that is on standby call constantly while a patient is on the balloon pump.

The patient is returned to the coronary care unit where they are kept under constant supervision by one of seven nurses. Most patients are weaned from the machine after 48 hours. During this period of time the heart has had a decreased work load and can begin to repair itself.

Fuller was in the coronary care unit only seven days with total length of stay four weeks, less than the average stay for some uncomplicated coronary cases.

In the weeks following the use of the balloon pump, the patient is studied with coronary angiography to see the exact condition of the arteries involved and to see whether surgical repair is indicated.

The new coronary care unit at St. Francis contains sophisticated monitoring equipment that closely supervises every heartbeat of the patients located there.

The machine has the additional capability of monitoring the pressue in the arteries and monitoring the heart activity the same as doing a continuous electrocardiogram. The machine can be used for arterial pressure monitoring without having the actual balloon inserted.

Scott City approves cable TV rate hike

SCOTT CITY — An increase in the charge for cable television, a crackdown on speeders going through town, and a move to head off further price increases for paving local streets were among actions taken by the City Council here Tuesday night.

Tom Gleason of See-Mor Cable TV, which has the franchise for installing a cable system here, asked the council for authority to raise the monthly price from $6 to $7.50.

Gleason said that cable service was optional with residents. He said the cost of installing a microwave system from St. Louis to Charleston necessitated the higher subscriber cost.

Promising that the system would be in operation by Dec. 1, Gleason also said the lines would be installed underground in subdivisions. He said he expects 50 per cent of residents to subscribe. See-Mor's request for the increase was granted.

Councilman Sonny Glass registered a complaint about gas and gravel trucks speeding on Main Street. He said he personally had clocked a truck doing 50 m.p.h.

Acting on the complaint, the council instructed Police Chief Ralph Hayes to begin a crackdown on all speeders. The speed limit on the heavily traveled thoroughfare is 30 m.p.h.

Anticipating a rise in cost of asphalt from 10 to 15 per cent, the council voted to borrow $30,000 from a local bank to make necessary street repairs. The loan will be paid back later this year when funds become available.

Streets cited as being in need of repair were First, Second, Third, Fourth, Louie, Lincoln and Perkins. The work will be done this summer. Mayor Alvie Modglin made the proposal and cited the cost savings involved.

On another street matter, residents of Gale street asked to have their street paved. They complained of the dusty conditions. The council agreed to pave the street, but said they must check with the city attorney on proper procedures.

Councilman Charles Bertrand also presented a proposition from Benny Wheeler, land developer, asking that Wheeler drive in Cloverdale subdivision be extended to York street and the entire street be named Wheeler drive.

In return, Wheeler offered to deed to the city property he owns for a street to extend north to undeveloped farmland. He also requested that the city blacktop a portion of Wheeler from D. A. Phegley's residence to Eldon Boswell's driveway. Wheeler offered to pay legal expenses.

After discussing the proposal, the council voted to accept the proposition.

In other action the council:

—Authorized Chief Hayes to use full service gas stations because he has said he couldn't get service needed from self-service stations.

—Approved a rezoning request of land owned by Ralph Hayes to be used for parking mobile homes after adjoining residents said they had no objection. The Planning and Zoning Commission had denied the request on the basis of existing ordinances specifying parcels of land for such use must be at least one acre.

—Approved Building Inspector Andy Schaefer's request that the board rescind a requirement for a $25 permit whenever a property owner wishes to demolish a building.

—Heard a request from John Rogers that a separate water meter be placed on a mobile home on his property to separate metering from that he uses. It was granted.

Illegal Laetrile use reported by chiropractor

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — An investigator for the Kansas Board of Healing Arts says a Johnson County chiropractor has treated several patients with what he said was Laetrile, the controversial cancer drug.

The investigator, Francis McGuire, said his report to the board would show that the chiropractor apparently administered the drug intravenously over a six-week period and that three of his patients had died of cancer.

McGuire said he could not prove that the drug actually was Laetrile, which is banned in Kansas, but that witnesses said "he administered what he said was Laetrile and we have to assume it was." McGuire said chiropractors in Kansas are not licensed to inject drugs or use intravenous procedures.

The investigator declined to identify the chiropractor before he submits his report to the board July 23.

McGuire said that when the case was referred to the board several weeks ago the chiropractor already was under investigation for allegedly administering a controversial hormone used to treat hardening of the arteries.

He said the investigation indicated the chiropractor administered what he said was the hormone to one patient who died. McGuire said the chiropractor denied using the hormone when he was interviewed.

The investigator said he did not know if the board would take any action against the chiropractor but that it could place him on probation or suspend or revoke his license.

At Wit's End

Six plus one commandments for kids during the summer

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Marge poured me a cup of coffee and said, "Have you noticed how quiet it is around here?"

"Yeah, where are the kids?"

"This morning, I posted the Six Commandments for Summer on the refrigerator door and it's working out great."

On the refrigerator was a page from a yellow lined tablet with the following declarations:

1. THOU SHALT NOT SPEAK THE FOLLOWING WORDS EVER: "There's nothing to do."

2. THOU SHALT NOT WATCH TELEVISION LONGER THAN FOUR HOURS AT ONE SITTING.

3. THOU SHALT NOT COVET THY NEIGHBOR'S BICYCLES, SKATEBOARDS, SWIMMING POOL OR ICE CREAM.

Incidentally, be sure the dishwasher is full (but, not overloaded), before washing the dishes. That would possibly eliminate at least one use of the dishwasher each week. If every dishwasher user in the country could do that, enough oil could be saved to heat more than 100,000 homes in winter. And, your dishwasher could last longer.

Lastly, use proper defrosting methods for manual refrigerator/ freezers. This will also save energy and cut operating costs.

* * *

Send your kitchen hints to: Harry G. Clark, (512), 173 W. Madison St., Chicago, IL 60602.

4. THOU SHALT NOT PLAY IN WATER IN HARD SHOES OR CHANGE CLOTHES MORE THAN FOUR TIMES A DAY.

5. THOU SHALT NOT KILL . . . THY BROTHER, THY SISTER, THY PLAYMATE, THY PARENTS.

6. THOU SHALT MAKE THY OWN GOOD TIMES USING IMAGINATION AND CREATIVITY.

Marge's five-year-old came into the kitchen and said, "Mom, can you go in the crawl space in the attic and get down the sled? I'm using my imagination and creativity."

When Marge returned, her daughter tugged at her slacks and said, "Would you mind turning on the oven and going to the store to get some chocolate chips? We are having a fair and I am keeping busy."

"Mom," said another son, "a dart fell behind the bunk bed and I need it to keep myself occupied."

"Mrs. Roth," said a neighbor child, "I don't want to punch in Ralph's face but he's hogging the skateboard and won't let us have a turn. Tell him to share."

"Mom, would you get the ice water? It's on the top shelf of the refrigerator and I can't get it without a chair."

"Mom, could you call Debbie's mother and see if I could play with her Frisbee?"

I watched as Marge tiredly added another commandment to the list: "THOUGH SHALT NOT INTERRUPT MOTHER WHEN SHE IS ROCKING BACK AND FORTH HUMMING TO HERSELF.."

Dear Ann Landers

Reader writes he 'hates work'

Dear Ann: I am a person of simple taste. I don't need much to make me happy. A can of beer, two good baseball teams, a freeway and a tank full of gas. A sunny day in early June. A brisk run at sunrise. A pretty girl who smiles when I look her way. A short story by William Faulkner.

None of these will pay the rent so I have to work -- which I hate, but I realize a person must be practical. What I need to know is why should I kill myself to meet someone else's definition of success?

To me, success is having enough money to prepare tomorrow's meal. Since I was old enough to talk I was told I was brilliant and would make a lot of money and have the world on a string. So here I am 23, netting $80 a week, but I'm genuinely happy and don't want for a thing.

My father (who has ulcers) is ashamed of me. My mother (her life is the beauty salon and clothes) thinks I'm a disgrace. I respect your opinion and would appreciate your opinion of my lifestyle. Am I wrong? Are they right? Where do you stand& -- Jerry In Yonkers

Dear Jerry: The most revealing part of your letter can be found in four words, "work -- which I hate."

Why does a smart guy like you hate work? Don't you realize money is only one of the benefits of labor? If you hate your job and view it as something you must do so you can eat the next day, you are wasting your time and probably ripping off your employer.

This country wasn't built by men who wanted nothing more out of life than a can of beer, a tank full of gas and a story by Faulkner.

And it's a good thing, because if everyone thought as you do we'd still be living in caves. There would be no progress in the sciences or the arts-- or in any of the areas that separate us from primitive people.

As a person who has worked very hard for many years (and I didn't need the money) I can tell you, my young friend, that work can be tremendously rewarding and wonderful fun. My idea of hell would be a life of leisure. The happiest people I know are the busiest. The most miserable are the idle rich.

I'm sorry about your dad's ulcers but I'll bet your relationship with him has a lot to do with why you hate work. Anything HE likes, you probably hate. Too bad you didn't get that problem resolved earlier. Siince you are only 23, it's not too late.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently the Idaho Statesman carried your column about venereal disease. The quiz was beneficial to a large number of readers but it ignored the gays completely.

Your personal viewpoint of the gays is well known, yet we do exist and have a right to know how VD affects us.- - Gay And Clean

Dear G. And C.: Since you young gays are generally more active sexually than heterosexuals, the only additional advice I have for you is to get a complete physical checkup at least once every six month-- and don't hesitate to reveal the names of your contacts should you become infected. This isn't finking. It's a public service.

How much do you know about pot, cocaine, speed, meth, uppers and downers, glue and heroine? Are all these drugs dangerous? Get Ann Landers's new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs" For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill plus a long, self-addressed envelope (24 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611

Six plus one commandments for kids during the summer

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Marge poured me a cup of coffee and said, "Have you noticed how quiet it is around here?"

"Yeah, where are the kids?"

"This morning, I posted the Six Commandments for Summer on the refrigerator door and it's working out great."

On the refrigerator was a page from a yellow lined tablet with the following declarations:

1. THOU SHALT NOT SPEAK THE FOLLOWING WORDS EVER: "There's nothing to do."
2. THOU SHALT NOT WATCH TELEVISION LONGER THAN FOUR HOURS AT ONE SITTING.
3. THOU SHALT NOT COVET THY NEIGHBOR'S BICYCLES, SKATEBOARDS, SWIMMING POOL OR ICE CREAM.
4. THOU SHALT NOT PLAY IN WATER IN HARD SHOES OR CHANGE CLOTHES MORE THAN FOUR TIMES A DAY.
5. THOU SHALT NOT KILL . . . THY BROTHER, THY SISTER, THY PLAYMATE, THY PARENTS.
6. THOU SHALT MAKE THY OWN GOOD TIMES USING IMAGINATION AND CREATIVITY.

Marge's five-year-old came into the kitchen and said, "Mom, can you go in the crawl space in the attic and get down the sled? I'm using my imagination and creativity."

When Marge returned, her daughter tugged at her slacks and said, "Would you mind turning on the oven and going to the store to get some chocolate chips? We are having a fair and I am keeping busy."

"Mom," said another son, "a dart fell behind the bunk bed and I need it to keep myself occupied."

"Mrs. Roth," said a neighbor child, "I don't want to punch in Ralph's face but he's hogging the skateboard and won't let us have a turn. Tell him to share."

"Mom, would you get the ice water? It's on the top shelf of the refrigerator and I can't get it without a chair."

"Mom, could you call Debbie's mother and see if I could play with her Frisbee?"

I watched as Marge tiredly added another commandment to the list: "THOUGH SHALT NOT INTERRUPT MOTHER WHEN SHE IS ROCKING BACK AND FORTH HUMMING TO HERSELF . . ."

Incidentally, be sure the dishwasher is full (but, not overloaded), before washing the dishes. That would possibly eliminate at least one use of the dishwasher each week. If every dishwasher user in the country could do that, enough oil could be saved to heat more than 100,000 homes in winter. And, your dishwasher could last longer.

Lastly, use proper defrosting methods for manual refrigerator/ freezers. This will also save energy and cut operating costs.

Dear Ann Landers

Reader writes he 'hates work'

Dear Ann: I am a person of simple taste. I don't need much to make me happy. A can of beer, two good baseball teams, a freeway and a tank full of gas. A sunny day in early June. A brisk run at sunrise. A pretty girl who smiles when I look her way. A short story by William Faulkner.

None of these will pay the rent so I have to work -- which I hate, but I realize a person must be practical. What I need to know is why should I kill myself to meet someone else's definition of success?

To me, success is having enough money to prepare tomorrow's meal. Since I was old enough to talk I was told I was brilliant and would make a lot of money and have the world on a string. So here I am 23, netting $80 a week, but I'm genuinely happy and don't want for a thing.

My father (who has ulcers) is ashamed of me. My mother (her life is the beauty salon and clothes) thinks I'm a disgrace. I respect your opinion and would appreciate your opinion of my lifestyle. Am I wrong? Are they right? Where do you stand& -- Jerry In Yonkers

Dear Jerry: The most revealing part of your letter can be found in four words, "work -- which I hate."

Why does a smart guy like you hate work? Don't you realize money is only one of the benefits of labor? If you hate your job and view it as something you must do so you can eat the next day, you are wasting your time and probably ripping off your employer.

This country wasn't built by men who wanted nothing more out of life than a can of beer, a tank full of gas and a story by Faulkner.

And it's a good thing, because if everyone thought as you do we'd still be living in caves. There would be no progress in the sciences or the arts-- or in any of the areas that separate us from primitive people.

As a person who has worked very hard for many years (and I didn't need the money) I can tell you, my young friend, that work can be tremendously rewarding and wonderful fun. My idea of hell would be a life of leisure. The happiest people I know are the busiest. The most miserable are the idle rich.

I'm sorry about your dad's ulcers but I'll bet your relationship with him has a lot to do with why you hate work. Anything HE likes, you probably hate. Too bad you didn't get that problem resolved earlier. Siince you are only 23, it's not too late.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently the Idaho Statesman carried your column about venereal disease. The quiz was beneficial to a large number of readers but it ignored the gays completely.

Your personal viewpoint of the gays is well known, yet we do exist and have a right to know how VD affects us.- - Gay And Clean

Dear G. And C.: Since you young gays are generally more active sexually than heterosexuals, the only additional advice I have for you is to get a complete physical checkup at least once every six month-- and don't hesitate to reveal the names of your contacts should you become infected. This isn't finking. It's a public service.

How much do you know about pot, cocaine, speed, meth, uppers and downers, glue and heroine? Are all these drugs dangerous? Get Ann Landers's new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs" For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill plus a long, self-addressed envelope (24 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. 55 MPH extension signed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Continuation of the reduced 55 mile-an-hour speed limit on Missouri highways through 1979 was signed into law today by Gov. Joseph Teasdale.

It is the second time the lower limit has been extended for two years since it was originally enacted in March 1974 under a federal mandate. Lawmakers, however, have rejected efforts to make the lower limit permanent.

State Highway Patrol officials credit the reduced limit with the substantial decline in traffic fatalities the state has experienced in the past 3½ years. Missouri has been one of only three states in the nation to receive federal incentive grants each year because of significant improvements in highway safety.

As of midnight Tuesday, 548 persons had been killed on state roads so far this year, down 40 from the number dying during the same period a year ago.

While the 1977 death toll is still above the number killed in 1974, the lowest number of deaths in years, it is well below the 698 persons killed during the first half of 1973, the year beofre the lower speed limit went into effect.

"We believe the lower limits is the cause of the downsurge in deaths," said Sgt. Donald Slevin of the patrol's traffic division. "People are again trying to comply with the limit."

Slevin said the average speed on highways is still slightly below 60 miles an hour, the same as recorded past year, and that speeding tickets and warnings are being issued at about the same pace as in 1976.

The earliest forerunner of the motor car is believed to be a three-wheeled steam-driven carriage built in 1769-70. It ran for about 20 minutes at two to three miles an hour.

Longtime observer convinced sunspots are directly related to weather patterns

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — It may sound a bit wacky at first, but Don Christy is convinced there is a relationship among sunspots, drought, the value of hogs at market and the flow of the world's rivers.

And understanding the delicate balance, he says, may be a key to increasing agricultural production and being able to predict violent storms on the Great Plains.

The secret lies in the tiny heart of some of natura's elements— the sublimation nuclei.

"I've spent 40 years researching this," said Christy, a cattle rancher, former state Senator and university instructor and independent thinker from western Kansas. '.I've been collecting this data almost all my life."

For nearly 15 minutes Tuesday, Christy wove a complicated theory at a public hearing before Sen. James Pearson, R-Kan., The hearing was to discuss the proposed establishment of a coordinated national climate program.

At the conclusion of Christy's presentation, Dr. Dean Bark, professor of physics at Kansas State University, urged him to submit his conclusions for academic scrutiny.

"Solar activity appears to influence precipitation," Christy said. "In some areas of the United States and the world, precipitation is increased during the period when the leading sunspots in the sun's northern hemisphere of the sunspot pair is of the northern polarity."

In essence, what Christy proposed is that during certain arrangements on the sun, the nuclei of some elements, stripped of their electrons, rise from the surface and ride the solar winds toward earth. Those that reach the planet become sublimation nuclei, around which tiny raindrops may form.

It is the same principle as artificial cloud seeding with silver iodide salt. Other particals in the air can do the same thing: salt from the sea, dust from the plains.

But this notion of cosmic particals from the sun adds something to the complex puzzle which scientists have been trying to answer for years — what makes it rain.

Without these tiny nuclear particles, either salt from the sea air or cosmic dust from sunspots, there can be little rain. The result in may cases is drought.

But Christy warned Sen. Pearson and the other academicians and experts who sat listening Thursday, that the game was more complicated than that. For some regions have high drought while others have plenty of rain.

The way Christy sees the process, in which everything is linked together, is as follows:

When the polarity of the sunspots isn't right, solar activity doesn't produce the particles needed. The lack of rain in the interior of major continents jesults in hotter temperatures, which, in turn, draws more moisture into the land.

"It may explain the increase of precipitation in the northeastern United States when the mid-continent U.S.A. is in drought," he said. "It may explain the reason that the lower Niger River flow has the opposite time table of the Upper Niger River. The extra heating inducted by the Sahara Desert brings extra moisture into the lower Niger from the Atlantic.

"The Upper Niger is behind a mountain range. The lifting of the incoming air washes the efficient salt nuclei from the air before it reaches the Upper Niger. Consequently, the timetable is determined by the sublimation nuclei supplied by the sun."

Therefore, then the sun is sending plenty of particles down this way, there will be rain, regardless of what's happening on the other side of the mountains.

If there aren't enough particles in the air, storms do not start or they drift further away, in many cases building up latent energy which can mean killer storms once they eventually get started. He cites the recent Thompson Canyon, the Blackhills, the Deertrail and the Lamar storms as examples.

By recognizing this relationship it is possible to predict Storms. By devising a process to sap their latent energy early, it may be possible to defuse them, he suggests.

To cap the concept, Christy notes that the rotation of solar winds around the sunspots changes over a 22-year cycle, which corresponds with the wet-dry weather cycle on earth. As the sunspots in northern polarity of the sun increase over an 11-year period the flow of the Mississippi River increases; as they fall during southern polarity during an 11-year span, so does the Mississippi flow fall.

The relationship is the same for many rivers in many countries, the flow showing precipitation over a long-term.

Finally, Christy notes that the value of herds of hogs and cattle increase during the wet period, largely due to increased grain and grass production and the extra hay and pasture production which tends to reduce feed costs . In addition, the extra profitable livestock food production tends to cause a hold from market, while herds are built.

It is a logical result of wet periods, which could be determined more accurately and dealt with more efficiently if more people understood the role of sublimental nuclei in the whole climate process. It is a broad and all-encompassing theory, Christy admits. But he contends it could go a long way toward understanding the nature of weather and doing something about it.

"It appears to me that if man could supply the right amount of properly efficient sublimation nuclei in the right location that the persistent drought years during the sun's south polarity would be more like the bounteous years of the sun's north polarity," he said.

"It might be that the same philosophy applied to the Great Plains would eliminate the killer storms."

Germ warfare tested in the White House?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Germ warfare tests at the White House? You'd better believe it.

They weren't conducted yesterday, or even last year. In fact, the whole business nearly has become lost in the mists of history. What makes the subject current is an apparent difference of opinion between the Pentagon and President Carter's White House over a reporter's request for details.

The Army acknowledged earlier this year it had turned loose nonlethal germs some years back in such public places here as the sprawling Pentagon, National Airport and the Greyhound bus depot before President Richard M. Nixon ordered a halt to all such activities in 1969.

This disclosure led to a rumor that the White House also had been a target for germ warfare experiments.

In response to an inquiry, a Pentagon spokesman said that "at the request of the White House staff, the Army in 1962 tested the air intake system of a portion of the White House." He said nonlethal bacteriological agents were employed.

Pressed for details, the spokesman said nothing would please him more than to provide an elaboration. However, he said he was under orders from the White House to say nothing further.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell later said he knew nothing about the tests or about any vag order to the Pentagon. Ditto for Jerrold Schecter, spokesman for the National Security Council. Ditto for John Warner, spokesman for the Secret Service.

So the whole affair remains as mysterious as those little microbes that floated around some part of the White House back when John F. Kennedy was president.

When Jimmy Carter walks, everybody — well, almost everybody — walks, too.

Eight sedans and station wagons were drawn up in a line when the President, relatives, aides, friends and bodyguards arrived by helicopter at Camp David, Md., for the July 4th weekend.

Carter moved directly toward his sedan, at the head of the line, conferred briefly with some of his fellow travelers, then picked up James Earl Carter IV, his 4-month-old grandson.

Turning away from the waiting vehicle, Carter stepped briskly down an asphalt roadway leading to his weekend lodge about a quarter-mile away. Wife Rosalynn and almost everyone else did the same.

Except for the infant, everyone walked save the drivers of the eight vehicles. The drivers pulled their cars into line behind the President and followed at a walking pace. It was Camp David's version of a holiday parade.

Carter calls for postal citizen-rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, meeting to decide whether to raise mail rates, has a request from President Carter for special cut-rate stamps for consumers.

Carter's request, made in a letter to Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar, asks him to consider a "citizen-rate" for first-class mail, but specifies no price.

One proposal that has been mentioned would make available a $1 booklet of eight stamps costing 12.5 cents each.

Bailar is expected to pass along Carter's request when the Postal Service Board of Governors meets today to act on proposed new rates that could take effect early next year and to discuss eliminating Saturday delivery.

Carter's proposed rate, recommended last week, could be used by individuals, not businesses.

"I believe that as a matter of national policy it would be in the public interest to pursue the concept of a citizen rate first-class postage for use by consumers," the President wrote.

Bailar said several months ago that the first-class letter rate probably would go to 15 cents if Saturday delivery was eliminated and 16 cents if it was continued.

Although rate increases bring the mail agency substantial criticism, the proposed reduction in delivery is generating as much controversy in Congress this time.

The controversy heated up when a congressionally created study commission recommended earlier this year that deliveries be reduced from six to five days per week, saving $412 million per year.

The study group commissioned a public opinion poll by the A.C. Nielsen organization that found that the public would rather go without the usual six-day delivery than pay more for postage.

Key members of Congress disputed the finding and a bill is pending in the House to order continued six-day delivery service.

One of the sponsors, Rep. Charles H. Wilson, D-Calif., wrote to every board member before the meeting urging that Saturday delivery not be ended.

He noted that a House resolution which he also is sponsoring urges retention of six-day delivery and has more than 200 co-sponsors. In the Senate, a similar non-binding resolution on the subject recently was adopted.

"I think that these two statements by both houses of Congress should be recognized as a better measure of public sentiment than the questionable Nielsen survey on the subject," Wilson told the governors.

55 MPH extension signed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Continuation of the reduced 55 mile-an-hour speed limit on Missouri highways through 1979 was signed into law today by Gov. Joseph Teasdale.

It is the second time the lower limit has been extended for two years since it was originally enacted in March 1974 under a federal mandate. Lawmakers, however, have rejected efforts to make the lower limit permanent.

State Highway Patrol officials credit the reduced limit with the substantial decline in traffic fatalities the state has experienced in the past 3½ years. Missouri has been one of only three states in the nation to receive federal incentive grants each year because of significant improvements in highway safety.

As of midnight Tuesday, 548 persons had been killed on state roads so far this year, down 40 from the number dying during the same period a year ago.

While the 1977 death toll is still above the number killed in 1974, the lowest number of deaths in years, it is well below the 698 persons killed during the first half of 1973, the year beofre the lower speed limit went into effect.

"We believe the lower limits is the cause of the downsurge in deaths," said Sgt. Donald Slevin of the patrol's traffic division. "People are again trying to comply with the limit."

Slevin said the average speed on highways is still slightly below 60 miles an hour, the same as recorded past year, and that speeding tickets and warnings are being issued at about the same pace as in 1976.

The earliest forerunner of the motor car is believed to be a three-wheeled steam-driven carriage built in 1769-70. It ran for about 20 minutes at two to three miles an hour.

Longtime observer convinced sunspots are directly related to weather patterns

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — It may sound a bit wacky at first, but Don Christy is convinced there is a relationship among sunspots, drought, the value of hogs at market and the flow of the world's rivers.

And understanding the delicate balance, he says, may be a key to increasing agricultural production and being able to predict violent storms on the Great Plains.

The secret lies in the tiny heart of some of natura's elements— the sublimation nuclei.

"I've spent 40 years researching this," said Christy, a cattle rancher, former state Senator and university instructor and independent thinker from western Kansas. '.I've been collecting this data almost all my life."

For nearly 15 minutes Tuesday, Christy wove a complicated theory at a public hearing before Sen. James Pearson, R-Kan., The hearing was to discuss the proposed establishment of a coordinated national climate program.

At the conclusion of Christy's presentation, Dr. Dean Bark, professor of physics at Kansas State University, urged him to submit his conclusions for academic scrutiny.

"Solar activity appears to influence precipitation," Christy said. "In some areas of the United States and the world, precipitation is increased during the period when the leading sunspots in the sun's northern hemisphere of the sunspot pair is of the northern polarity."

In essence, what Christy proposed is that during certain arrangements on the sun, the nuclei of some elements, stripped of their electrons, rise from the surface and ride the solar winds toward earth. Those that reach the planet become sublimation nuclei, around which tiny raindrops may form.

It is the same principle as artificial cloud seeding with silver iodide salt. Other particals in the air can do the same thing: salt from the sea, dust from the plains.

But this notion of cosmic particals from the sun adds something to the complex puzzle which scientists have been trying to answer for years — what makes it rain.

Without these tiny nuclear particles, either salt from the sea air or cosmic dust from sunspots, there can be little rain. The result in may cases is drought.

But Christy warned Sen. Pearson and the other academicians and experts who sat listening Thursday, that the game was more complicated than that. For some regions have high drought while others have plenty of rain.

The way Christy sees the process, in which everything is linked together, is as follows:

When the polarity of the sunspots isn't right, solar activity doesn't produce the particles needed. The lack of rain in the interior of major continents jesults in hotter temperatures, which, in turn, draws more moisture into the land.

"It may explain the increase of precipitation in the northeastern United States when the mid-continent U.S.A. is in drought," he said. "It may explain the reason that the lower Niger River flow has the opposite time table of the Upper Niger River. The extra heating inducted by the Sahara Desert brings extra moisture into the lower Niger from the Atlantic.

"The Upper Niger is behind a mountain range. The lifting of the incoming air washes the efficient salt nuclei from the air before it reaches the Upper Niger. Consequently, the timetable is determined by the sublimation nuclei supplied by the sun."

Therefore, then the sun is sending plenty of particles down this way, there will be rain, regardless of what's happening on the other side of the mountains.

If there aren't enough particles in the air, storms do not start or they drift further away, in many cases building up latent energy which can mean killer storms once they eventually get started. He cites the recent Thompson Canyon, the Blackhills, the Deertrail and the Lamar storms as examples.

By recognizing this relationship it is possible to predict Storms. By devising a process to sap their latent energy early, it may be possible to defuse them, he suggests.

To cap the concept, Christy notes that the rotation of solar winds around the sunspots changes over a 22-year cycle, which corresponds with the wet-dry weather cycle on earth. As the sunspots in northern polarity of the sun increase over an 11-year period the flow of the Mississippi River increases; as they fall during southern polarity during an 11-year span, so does the Mississippi flow fall.

The relationship is the same for many rivers in many countries, the flow showing precipitation over a long-term.

Finally, Christy notes that the value of herds of hogs and cattle increase during the wet period, largely due to increased grain and grass production and the extra hay and pasture production which tends to reduce feed costs . In addition, the extra profitable livestock food production tends to cause a hold from market, while herds are built.

It is a logical result of wet periods, which could be determined more accurately and dealt with more efficiently if more people understood the role of sublimental nuclei in the whole climate process. It is a broad and all-encompassing theory, Christy admits. But he contends it could go a long way toward understanding the nature of weather and doing something about it.

"It appears to me that if man could supply the right amount of properly efficient sublimation nuclei in the right location that the persistent drought years during the sun's south polarity would be more like the bounteous years of the sun's north polarity," he said.

"It might be that the same philosophy applied to the Great Plains would eliminate the killer storms."

Germ warfare tested in the White House?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Germ warfare tests at the White House? You'd better believe it.

They weren't conducted yesterday, or even last year. In fact, the whole business nearly has become lost in the mists of history. What makes the subject current is an apparent difference of opinion between the Pentagon and President Carter's White House over a reporter's request for details.

The Army acknowledged earlier this year it had turned loose nonlethal germs some years back in such public places here as the sprawling Pentagon, National Airport and the Greyhound bus depot before President Richard M. Nixon ordered a halt to all such activities in 1969.

This disclosure led to a rumor that the White House also had been a target for germ warfare experiments.

In response to an inquiry, a Pentagon spokesman said that "at the request of the White House staff, the Army in 1962 tested the air intake system of a portion of the White House." He said nonlethal bacteriological agents were employed.

Pressed for details, the spokesman said nothing would please him more than to provide an elaboration. However, he said he was under orders from the White House to say nothing further.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell later said he knew nothing about the tests or about any vag order to the Pentagon. Ditto for Jerrold Schecter, spokesman for the National Security Council. Ditto for John Warner, spokesman for the Secret Service.

So the whole affair remains as mysterious as those little microbes that floated around some part of the White House back when John F. Kennedy was president.

When Jimmy Carter walks, everybody — well, almost everybody — walks, too.

Eight sedans and station wagons were drawn up in a line when the President, relatives, aides, friends and bodyguards arrived by helicopter at Camp David, Md., for the July 4th weekend.

Carter moved directly toward his sedan, at the head of the line, conferred briefly with some of his fellow travelers, then picked up James Earl Carter IV, his 4-month-old grandson.

Turning away from the waiting vehicle, Carter stepped briskly down an asphalt roadway leading to his weekend lodge about a quarter-mile away. Wife Rosalynn and almost everyone else did the same.

Except for the infant, everyone walked save the drivers of the eight vehicles. The drivers pulled their cars into line behind the President and followed at a walking pace. It was Camp David's version of a holiday parade.

Carter calls for postal citizen-rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, meeting to decide whether to raise mail rates, has a request from President Carter for special cut-rate stamps for consumers.

Carter's request, made in a letter to Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar, asks him to consider a "citizen-rate" for first-class mail, but specifies no price.

One proposal that has been mentioned would make available a $1 booklet of eight stamps costing 12.5 cents each.

Bailar is expected to pass along Carter's request when the Postal Service Board of Governors meets today to act on proposed new rates that could take effect early next year and to discuss eliminating Saturday delivery.

Carter's proposed rate, recommended last week, could be used by individuals, not businesses.

"I believe that as a matter of national policy it would be in the public interest to pursue the concept of a citizen rate first-class postage for use by consumers," the President wrote.

Bailar said several months ago that the first-class letter rate probably would go to 15 cents if Saturday delivery was eliminated and 16 cents if it was continued.

Although rate increases bring the mail agency substantial criticism, the proposed reduction in delivery is generating as much controversy in Congress this time.

The controversy heated up when a congressionally created study commission recommended earlier this year that deliveries be reduced from six to five days per week, saving $412 million per year.

The study group commissioned a public opinion poll by the A.C. Nielsen organization that found that the public would rather go without the usual six-day delivery than pay more for postage.

Key members of Congress disputed the finding and a bill is pending in the House to order continued six-day delivery service.

One of the sponsors, Rep. Charles H. Wilson, D-Calif., wrote to every board member before the meeting urging that Saturday delivery not be ended.

He noted that a House resolution which he also is sponsoring urges retention of six-day delivery and has more than 200 co-sponsors. In the Senate, a similar non-binding resolution on the subject recently was adopted.

"I think that these two statements by both houses of Congress should be recognized as a better measure of public sentiment than the questionable Nielsen survey on the subject," Wilson told the governors.

Candy store for sale

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP) — "Gran'pa's" caramel corn had such appeal that a chauffeured Rolls Royce from Indianapolis drove to this nearby town three times a year so its passenger could indulge his craving.

But "Gran'pa's Popcorn and Candy Store" — a business 108 years old — is for sale, along with the patented caramel corn recipe that kept three generations of munchers happy.

George Cullen and his wife, Lora Jane, both 65, closed their shop in December after 22 years.

"It's very simple," Cullen said of his decision to sell the store that once boasted 74 varieties of homemade candy. "The wife and I were getting too old to handle it."

Cullen said they want to find someone to breathe new life in the business started in 1869 by his grandfather, a Civil War veteran.

There was one inquiry after a story about the closing appeared in the local newspaper.

"The very first call we had was from a little 6-year-old boy," said Mrs. Cullen with a chuckle. "He said he wanted to buy it."

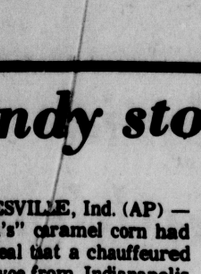

They would have preferred to keep the business in the family, Cullen explains, but the couple's two daughters have chosen careers in music and the law.

The caramel corn recipe has been a family secret since his grandfather opened his first candy stand in a hotel on the courthouse square, but even Cullen doesn't know where his grandfather got it.

The sweet result was good enough to make "Gran'pa's" a staple at county and state fairs, while creating a loyal following from coast to coast.

Study shows solar heat may be feasible by '80

WASHINGTON (AP) — Solar energy may be able to compete with electricity in producing heat and hot water for large commercial and residential buildings as early as 1980, a new congressional study says.

The report by the Office of Technology Assessment, published Tuesday, suggests that Congress consider policies beyond what the Carter administration is endorsing to encourage development of large solar power units.

The study says rising electricity costs and falling solar equipment expenses may make even small solar electricity units economically competitive with conventional power plants.

But most buildings still would need a back-up conventional power system, the study says, adding that solar energy cannot compete with coal in industrial use for at least the next 20 years.

The study, nearly 1,000 pages long, was based on computer comparisons of solar energy devices with electric or natural gas systems.

It suggests that private homes can use the sun's rays to provide hot water and, perhaps, space heating, and adds that office and apartment buildings or hotels may find it even more financially attractive to turn to solar heating and hot water.

Even solar air conditioning may be feasible, perhaps by roofing over parking lots with solar energy collectors and burying heat-storing water tanks beneath the lots, the study says.

Heat collected by simple solar panels could be circulated through coils for direct heating, or used to drive devices called "heat pumps" that can be reversed to provide air conditioning.

If the federal Energy Research and Development Administration can meet its 1985 goal of reducing the cost of solar-electric cells by almost 97 per cent, the report says, it may become economical to generate electricity directly from sunlight, using crystal panels something like those that have helped power manned spacecraft and communications satellites.

Only the new, cheaper solar panels would be reasonable for private homes and other buildings that use relatively little electricity.

The report says increased use of solar energy would mean a cleaner environment and would increase employment, particularly in the building trades and in the manufacturing and maintenance of solar equipment.

2 escapees may be headed for Mexico

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Two Oklahoma prison escapees charged with the killings of a town marshal and a U.S. Corps of Engineers ranger in Arkansas are believed to be heading toward Mexico.

A hand-drawn map of Mexico, torn in half, was found in the cell of Elmer Finin, a convict who escaped with the two others but has not been linked to the slayings.

Earl Van Denton, 27, and Paul Ruiz, 29, have been charged with the deaths of Magazine, Ark., town marshal Marvin Richie and Corps ranger Opal James. They also have been charged with attempted first-degree murder in the wounding of another ranger.

The FBI, in a complaint charging the three with interstate flight to avoid prosecution, said that an informant told them Finin would likely go to Mexico with Ruiz, a Mexican.

Prosecuting Atty. Paul Williams Jr. says lesser charges relating to their alleged activities may be filed this week.

Authorities suspect the gunmen, who were serving life terms when they broke out of the Oklahoma prison at McAlester June 23, went from Oklahoma to Louisiana to Arkansas and then back to Oklahoma. In their wake, two men are dead, one is wounded and three are missing and feared dead.

The escapees are believed to have gone from Arkansas to Purcell, Okla., where a stolen Arkansas pickup truck was found Friday. At the same time James Melvin Short, 40, a Purcell taxi driver, disappeared after picking up two men in his cab.

Short's wife said Tuesday that she believes her husband is driving the escapees to Mexico. Mrs. Short, a native of Panama, said her husband knows Mexico well.

NL pitchers rule Little League play

National League pitching highlighted action last night in the Sikeston Little League. The second game saw Ken Deal pitch a two hitter for legion against the Lions to win 4-2. Marland Beaudean also pitched a fine game as he allowed only three hits. Unfortunately for his team, one of those hits was a three run homer by Legion's Vince Howard.

In the first game of National League action, Todd Baker of Pizza Inn allowed a lead off single by Stewart of Lewis Furniture. However, that was the only hit Lewis could muster in the game. Baker went on to win the game 10-2 and David Ervin was the loser.

Howard's homer keyed the four run fourth for Legion and the pitching of Deal kept Lions scoreless until they got their two runs in the top of the sixth. This loss by Lions would seem to give undefeated Pizza Inn a comfortable lead in the National League race, as well as a free pizza dinner.

The wild scramble for dominance in the American League remains wide open as Moore's Firestone dropped a tough one to Ziegenhorn 9-8. Moore's banged out eleven hits including a home run that cleared the fence by first baseman Sidney Lee. Ziegenhorn had ten hits, which included a 4-for-4 performance by Mike Spitler. Both team seemed flat offensively in the first four innings as the score stood 3-1 Ziegenhorn. In the two frame, Moore's came up with seven to eventually tie the game. In their final at bats, Ziegenhorn scored the run that put them over the top. Lee Taylor was the winner and Carroll Hurley the loser.

In the second game, Collins Realty rammed nine runs home in the fourth to take the win over Fabick 12-3. Winner pitcher Glen Parker allowed the opposition only two hits as his squad banged out six. Lee Zook went 3-for-3 to get half of Collins' hits. Kevin Kerr was the losing hurler for Fabick.

Controversy reigned in Musial League action last night. The first game pitted Sikeston Standart against Bank of Sikeston. The game was played under protest after the Standard brought their right fielder in to play behind the umpire to guard against passed balls. Bank of Sikeston did score one in the fifth to tie the game and send it into an extra inning. Tim Seabaugh hit a bases loaded triple for Bank of Sikeston in that extra frame to power them to an 11-6 apparent win. Bill Ruby was the loser while Rod Anderson grabbed the win.

The second contest was won by Collins Construction 11-4 over Malone and Hyde. A seven run third inning and the one hit pitching of David Glaus were the keys to Collins win. Brian Harper was the loser for M & H while Glaus got the win.

Another Schatzley stars for Comets

Now that Les Schatzley his Vanduser softball uniform for that of the Oran team, it's up to newcomer Bill to fill the shoes of big brother in the Vanduser lineup.

The younger Schatzley did just that Wednesday night, stroking an inside-the-park home run with one out in the third inning to give the Comets a 1-0 victory over Scott City in the SeMo Fastpitch Softball League.

In other games, Oran blanked Kelso Supply 7-0, Benton defeated the Cape Mets 10-1, New Hamburg Righter Trucking stopped Kelso 8-2 and the New Hamburg Blues nipped Chaffee 2-1.

BillSchatzley smashed a pitch from loser Wayne Smith of Scott City down the right field line and circled the bases to help make a winner of teammate Bill Gilliand, who tossed a two-hitter at the Scott City club.

Don Robert fired a one-hitter for Oran, striking out ten in the process, as the league leaders defeated Kelso Supply. The hardhitting Oran bunch broke A.J. Schott's string of 20-plus scoreless innings, with Gary Owens and Don Metz each clubbing three-run homers. Supply's only hit was a triple by Ray Reinagle.

The Benton Aces scored eight runs in the third and went on to rip the Mets of Cape. Larry Steimle scattered five hits while earning the pitching victory.

New Hamburg Righter scored four in the fourth in their victory over Kelso. Don Kern outpitched Charles Schwartz to win it, getting batting support from David Pyles, who rapped three hits.

Holloway fourth nationally in AAU Junior Olympic Decathlon

Daily Standard Sports Editor

Sikeston's John Holloway, who finished fourth in the entire United States of America in his age division in the AAU Junior Olympic Decathlon, is disappointed.

"I was hoping to win it," said Holloway, who competed over the weekend at Yakima, Wash. in the national competition. Holloway's 6,521 points were good for fourth place in the 16-17 year-old mens division--a feat that would thrill most athletes. But the former Sikeston Bulldog is not one to settle for "only fourth".

Holloway earned the right to compete against 20 others in his age group at Yakima by winning the Ozark Association championship, where he established a new record by totalling 6,322 points at the Poplar Bluff event May 28 and 29.

John also met the other two criteria for qualifying for the national event, although he didn't need to. He placed among the top three at the Regional Decathon at Searcy, Ark. (he won), and he had a score of better than 5,700 points (his best has been 6,636 at Searcy).

The fact that Holloway did not match his performance at Searcy is one of the reasons that he was disappointed with his performance at the nationals.

Lack of sleep and cold weather combined to get Holloway down physically at Yakima. "I got sick the second day," he admitted, although not making excuses. John didn't arrive at Yakima until 3:00 a.m. the morning the competition began, and 50 degree temperatures with 25 mile-per-hour winds weakened the Sikestonian.

Holloway though he could have challenged for first place, had he performed up to his capabilities.

"I lost about 500 points in the first three events of the second day," he said, referring to the 100-meter high hurdles, the discus and the pole vault. He was eighth in the standings after the pole vault, but did well enough in the javelin and the 1,500 meters, both personal bests) to pull himself up to the fourth position in the final standings.

Holloway felt he could have broken the 7,000 barrier easily had he performed his best. The winner of the event, Keith Collins of Cashmere, Wash., set a new national record with 7.128 points.

The first day's events saw John competing in his two strongest events--the long jump and the high jump--in addition to the 100-meter dash, the shot put and the 400-meter dash. He set a new personal mark in the high jump with a 6'4" leap, and also turned in a long jump of over 24 feet. But his score in the long jump was cut when he dragged his hand on the landing.

It was not Holloway's first time at the National Decathlon. He finished ninth in the nation then, but got only 5,979 points. "I did terrible," he remembered.

Holloway, who is now 18, can no longer compete in the Senior Division, although his birth date allowed him to to do so this year. He is still trying to decide where to attend college in the fall, although the University of Missouri and Arkansas State are strong possibilities. John wants to go to a school where they offer a decathlon event, and he wants to go with Bulldog teammate John Waltrip.

As for summer competition, he says he'll try the AAU (Amateur Athletic Union) Junior Division first, because he doesn't think he is good enough to compete with the men just yet.

But he'll improve, and someday.

Relief hard to find at Pitt

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Relief was hard to find — both from the humidity and the hitters.

"It was just one of those nights," pitcher Rich Gossage said Wednesday after his Pittsburgh Pirates beat the St. Louis Cardinals 11-8 in a game in which each side stirred the muggy air with 14 hits.

Gossage yielded a towering three-run homer by Ted Simmons that capped a seven-run St. Louis surge in the seventh inning to put the Cardinals ahead 8-6.

"That's probably my best bolt ever ... the farthest one I've hit," Simmons said of his 93rd career homer, which bounced off a cement tier high in right.

Yet the Cardinal lead slipped away as Pirate pinchhitter Fernando Gonzalez drove a three-run homer over the centerfield wall in the Pirate seventh off Al Hrabosky.

"It was not a good night for relief pitchers," said Gossage, dripping sweat after an ineffective two-thirds of an inning.

It wasn't a night for starting pitchers either.

Pete Falcone of the Cardinals left the game in the first inning without retiring a batter after yielding three runs on three walks and doubles by Al Oliver and Dave Parker.

Pittsburgh extended its lead to 6-1 through six innings with the aid of a solo homer by Parker, his 13th, off reliever Butch Mutzger, who also allowed a run-scoring double by Pirate pitcher Jerry Reuss.

Reuss, backed by three double plays in the early innings, faltered in the seventh.

With one out, the Cardinals loaded the bases on two singles and a walk. When Reuss walked Hector Cruz on a three-and-two pitch to force in a run, he was relieved by Gossage.

"I really didn't have my good fastball tonight," said Gossage, who first yielded a two-run single by Lou Brock.

After striking out Garry Templeton, Gossage allowed a run-scoring single by pinchitter Dave Rader. Then Simmons drove a three-and-two pitch well over the rightfield wall.

Trailing 8-6, the Pirates began their winning rally off Hrabosky with two outs in the seventh.

Jim Fregosi walked, then took second on an infield hit by Ed Ott. Gonzalez, batting for Gossage, then clouted his second homer of the season to center.

The Pirates added two runs in the eighth off Rawly Eastwick on a solo homer by Phil Garner, his ninth, and an RBI-double by Oliver.

Pirate reliever Kent Tekulve held the Cardinals to one hit over the last two innings, raising his record to 7-1. Hrabosky fell to 2-3.

The defeat dropped the third-place Cardinals 6½ games off the pace in the National League East. They began a series today in Chicago against the first-place Cubs.

Holloway fourth nationally in AAU Junior Olympic Decathlon

Daily Standard Sports Editor

Sikeston's John Holloway, who finished fourth in the entire United States of America in his age division in the AAU Junior Olympic Decathlon, is disappointed.

"I was hoping to win it," said Holloway, who competed over the weekend at Yakima, Wash. in the national competition. Holloway's 6,521 points were good for fourth place in the 16-17 year-old mens division--a feat that would thrill most athletes. But the former Sikeston Bulldog is not one to settle for "only fourth".

Holloway earned the right to compete against 20 others in his age group at Yakima by winning the Ozark Association championship, where he established a new record by totalling 6,322 points at the Poplar Bluff event May 28 and 29.

John also met the other two criteria for qualifying for the national event, although he didn't need to. He placed among the top three at the Regional Decathon at Searcy, Ark. (he won), and he had a score of better than 5,700 points (his best has been 6,636 at Searcy).

The fact that Holloway did not match his performance at Searcy is one of the reasons that he was disappointed with his performance at the nationals.

Lack of sleep and cold weather combined to get Holloway down physically at Yakima. "I got sick the second day," he admitted, although not making excuses. John didn't arrive at Yakima until 3:00 a.m. the morning the competition began, and 50 degree temperatures with 25 mile-per-hour winds weakened the Sikestonian.

Holloway though he could have challenged for first place, had he performed up to his capabilities.

"I lost about 500 points in the first three events of the second day," he said, referring to the 100-meter high hurdles, the discus and the pole vault. He was eighth in the standings after the pole vault, but did well enough in the javelin and the 1,500 meters, both personal bests) to pull himself up to the fourth position in the final standings.

Holloway felt he could have broken the 7,000 barrier easily had he performed his best. The winner of the event, Keith Collins of Cashmere, Wash., set a new national record with 7.128 points.

The first day's events saw John competing in his two strongest events--the long jump and the high jump--in addition to the 100-meter dash, the shot put and the 400-meter dash. He set a new personal mark in the high jump with a 6'4" leap, and also turned in a long jump of over 24 feet. But his score in the long jump was cut when he dragged his hand on the landing.

It was not Holloway's first time at the National Decathlon. He finished ninth in the nation then, but got only 5,979 points. "I did terrible," he remembered.

Holloway, who is now 18, can no longer compete in the Senior Division, although his birth date allowed him to to do so this year. He is still trying to decide where to attend college in the fall, although the University of Missouri and Arkansas State are strong possibilities. John wants to go to a school where they offer a decathlon event, and he wants to go with Bulldog teammate John Waltrip.

As for summer competition, he says he'll try the AAU (Amateur Athletic Union) Junior Division first, because he doesn't think he is good enough to compete with the men just yet.

But he'll improve, and someday.

Relief hard to find at Pitt

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Relief was hard to find — both from the humidity and the hitters.

"It was just one of those nights," pitcher Rich Gossage said Wednesday after his Pittsburgh Pirates beat the St. Louis Cardinals 11-8 in a game in which each side stirred the muggy air with 14 hits.

Gossage yielded a towering three-run homer by Ted Simmons that capped a seven-run St. Louis surge in the seventh inning to put the Cardinals ahead 8-6.

"That's probably my best bolt ever ... the farthest one I've hit," Simmons said of his 93rd career homer, which bounced off a cement tier high in right.

Yet the Cardinal lead slipped away as Pirate pinchhitter Fernando Gonzalez drove a three-run homer over the centerfield wall in the Pirate seventh off Al Hrabosky.

"It was not a good night for relief pitchers," said Gossage, dripping sweat after an ineffective two-thirds of an inning.

It wasn't a night for starting pitchers either.

Pete Falcone of the Cardinals left the game in the first inning without retiring a batter after yielding three runs on three walks and doubles by Al Oliver and Dave Parker.

Pittsburgh extended its lead to 6-1 through six innings with the aid of a solo homer by Parker, his 13th, off reliever Butch Mutzger, who also allowed a run-scoring double by Pirate pitcher Jerry Reuss.

Reuss, backed by three double plays in the early innings, faltered in the seventh.

With one out, the Cardinals loaded the bases on two singles and a walk. When Reuss walked Hector Cruz on a three-and-two pitch to force in a run, he was relieved by Gossage.

"I really didn't have my good fastball tonight," said Gossage, who first yielded a two-run single by Lou Brock.

After striking out Garry Templeton, Gossage allowed a run-scoring single by pinchitter Dave Rader. Then Simmons drove a three-and-two pitch well over the rightfield wall.

Trailing 8-6, the Pirates began their winning rally off Hrabosky with two outs in the seventh.

Jim Fregosi walked, then took second on an infield hit by Ed Ott. Gonzalez, batting for Gossage, then clouted his second homer of the season to center.

The Pirates added two runs in the eighth off Rawly Eastwick on a solo homer by Phil Garner, his ninth, and an RBI-double by Oliver.

Pirate reliever Kent Tekulve held the Cardinals to one hit over the last two innings, raising his record to 7-1. Hrabosky fell to 2-3.

The defeat dropped the third-place Cardinals 6½ games off the pace in the National League East. They began a series today in Chicago against the first-place Cubs.

1-hitters habit for SB&T

Security Bank and Trust of Cairo got its second consecutive one-hitter, survived a period of wildness in the fourth and held off McTigue Construction 6-5.

Jimmie Cowger and Ron Hurley combined for the one-hit performance on this occasion. The night before, when the scorebook wasn't made available to the Standard, Brad Garner threw a one-hit shutout at the Elks, 9-0. The other Tuesday game saw undefeated Portageville VFW hold off Garner Real Estate 5-2.

Wednesday Security Bank scored five times in the first off loser Terry Wheatley, taking advantage off three hits, two walks and an error. Sam McCord's double in the third knocked in the winning run.

Cowger hurled through three innings before tiring in the fourth. When Hurley took over he suffered some early wildness, then settled down and retired eight of the last nine men he faced.

The other scheduled Wednesday game was forfeited by Security National Bank, to Jim Moore.

Steward moves into 2nd

While the Eagles appear to have the championship of the Sikeston Fastpitch Softball League in the bag, there is still a hot race for second place in the circuit.

The Eagles tightened their grip on the league lead with their 12th. straight victory last night, a 6-2 decision over Eby's Distributing, while Steward Steel pulled a half game ahead of idle Purkey's Restaurant into second place by defeating Security National Bank 5-3.

Carl Barnett's two-run homer in the sixth helped ice the Eagles victory. John Chessor picked up the win over Henry Leible of the Eby's club as the Eagles moved closer to clinching the league championship.

Mike Nelson's two-run triple highlighted a three-run fourth that powered Steward Steel past Security National in the nightcap and gave Steward sole possession of second place. Steward had scored twice in the first off loser Tommy Masterson, with two walks an error doing the damage. Jigs Moore had a pair of his of winning hurler Vernie Deane to pace the losing effort for SNB.

Cape dumps Scott County

CAPE GIRARDEAU--Scott County's American Legion team had long looked forward to Wednesday night's showdown with Cape Girardeau, but after their performance in the Capaha Park clash, they might rather forget it.

The timely hitting that gave the Legionnaires four straight victories in a holiday series in the Ozarks was absent Wednesday night. Scott County left eleven men on base as they dropped a 9-3 decision to the Cape squad.

Scott County had runners on base in every inning but the first and pounded out eleven hits in all, but couldn't get the big hit when they needed it. A leadoff homer by Jeff Limbaugh in the second and sacrifice flies by Lindy Duncan in the seventh and Russell Deal in the ninth accounted for Scott County's only runs as they lost for only the sixth time this season. Dennis Glueck was on the scoring end of both sacrifice flies.

Cape chased starter Chris Torbett from the box in the fifth, although reliever Duncan was the victim of much of the five-run outburst. Rick Dohogne cleared the bases with a double to drive in three, and Rick Sipple's two-bagger plated another run.

Keith Boeller came on in the ninth to relieve Turner and kill the Scott County rally almost before it got started. Deal's run-scoring fly came with the bases loaded, but Boeller got the final outs with no further damage.

1-hitters habit for SB&T

Security Bank and Trust of Cairo got its second consecutive one-hitter, survived a period of wildness in the fourth and held off McTigue Construction 6-5.

Jimmie Cowger and Ron Hurley combined for the one-hit performance on this occasion. The night before, when the scorebook wasn't made available to the Standard, Brad Garner threw a one-hit shutout at the Elks, 9-0. The other Tuesday game saw undefeated Portageville VFW hold off Garner Real Estate 5-2.

Wednesday Security Bank scored five times in the first off loser Terry Wheatley, taking advantage off three hits, two walks and an error. Sam McCord's double in the third knocked in the winning run.

Cowger hurled through three innings before tiring in the fourth. When Hurley took over he suffered some early wildness, then settled down and retired eight of the last nine men he faced.

The other scheduled Wednesday game was forfeited by Security National Bank, to Jim Moore.

Steward moves into 2nd

While the Eagles appear to have the championship of the Sikeston Fastpitch Softball League in the bag, there is still a hot race for second place in the circuit.

The Eagles tightened their grip on the league lead with their 12th. straight victory last night, a 6-2 decision over Eby's Distributing, while Steward Steel pulled a half game ahead of idle Purkey's Restaurant into second place by defeating Security National Bank 5-3.

Carl Barnett's two-run homer in the sixth helped ice the Eagles victory. John Chessor picked up the win over Henry Leible of the Eby's club as the Eagles moved closer to clinching the league championship.

Mike Nelson's two-run triple highlighted a three-run fourth that powered Steward Steel past Security National in the nightcap and gave Steward sole possession of second place. Steward had scored twice in the first off loser Tommy Masterson, with two walks an error doing the damage. Jigs Moore had a pair of his of winning hurler Vernie Deane to pace the losing effort for SNB.

Cape dumps Scott County

CAPE GIRARDEAU--Scott County's American Legion team had long looked forward to Wednesday night's showdown with Cape Girardeau, but after their performance in the Capaha Park clash, they might rather forget it.

The timely hitting that gave the Legionnaires four straight victories in a holiday series in the Ozarks was absent Wednesday night. Scott County left eleven men on base as they dropped a 9-3 decision to the Cape squad.

Scott County had runners on base in every inning but the first and pounded out eleven hits in all, but couldn't get the big hit when they needed it. A leadoff homer by Jeff Limbaugh in the second and sacrifice flies by Lindy Duncan in the seventh and Russell Deal in the ninth accounted for Scott County's only runs as they lost for only the sixth time this season. Dennis Glueck was on the scoring end of both sacrifice flies.

Cape chased starter Chris Torbett from the box in the fifth, although reliever Duncan was the victim of much of the five-run outburst. Rick Dohogne cleared the bases with a double to drive in three, and Rick Sipple's two-bagger plated another run.

Keith Boeller came on in the ninth to relieve Turner and kill the Scott County rally almost before it got started. Deal's run-scoring fly came with the bases loaded, but Boeller got the final outs with no further damage.

POOL PROFITS

DETROIT (AP) —Maintenance men made quite a haul when they cleaned the one-acre reflecting pool in the lobby of the new Detroit Plaza hotel in Renaissance Center.

Opening day visitors to the $337-million Center, which is the keystone in the program to revitalize the downtown area, tossed $220 in quarters, dimes, nickels and pennies into the hotel's pool. Workmen emptied the pool the day after opening ceremonies in order to make a minor repair.

The one-day take will be donated to a local charity. Subsequent pool cleanings will also benefit local charities on a rotating basis.

What's the law?

The case of the obedient driver

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Betty had a figure with more curves than a road map. The result? The boys just loved her and she loved them right back. Being as naive as she was desirable, however, by the time Betty was 16 years of age she already had three children -- which panicked her mother.

Conmsequently, her mother finally decided to instruct her daughter on the various techniques of avoiding pregnancy. And, while she succeeded in reducing the chances of Betty's again being visited by the stork, Betty's mother received a visit from the authorities. She was charged with contributing to the deliquency of a minor.

" By teaching Betty about birth control," the prosecuting attorney told the judge, "Betty's mother made it safer and thus more attractive for her daughter to engage in improper sex relationships."

"Well, I had to do something," responded Betty's harried mother. "At the rate Betty was having kids, she would have been in a worse pickle than the Old Lady Who Lived In A Shoe -- with so many children she didn't know what to do. So, I only did what I had to do."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict Betty's mother of contributing to the deliquency of her naive daughter?

This is how the judge ruled: No. The judge held that a state has no right to interfere with a mother's instructions to a daughter on how to avoid conception before marriage. Such instruction, noted the judge, is part of a mother's constitutional right of free speech. Futhermore, he concluded, it is her obligation as a parent to do so.

Based upon a 1965 Ohio Court of Appeals Decision.

George Washington was elected first president of the United States and John Adams became vice-president in 1789.

Woman survives plunge

BOSTON (AP) — A 25-year-old woman is on her way to recovery following a fall five stories down an airshaft in an apartment building.

Linda Dalianas of Randolph was just beginning to enjoy the Fourth of July fireworks at the Charles River Esplanade from the roof of the eight-story building when a piece of plywood gave way beneath her and sent her plunging down the airshaft.

"This was not one of my better Fourths of July," she said from her bed at Beth Israel Hospital on Tuesday.

Miss Dalianas said she struck "all kinds of things" while she barreled feet first down the airshaft. She managed to grab hold of a pole running across the shaft at the third floor of the Commonwealth Avenue building.

Once she grabbed the pole at the third floor, Miss Dalianas said she wrapped a rope or cable hanging nearby around her leg, "and I was screaming for help."

Police and fire fighters tore out a bathroom wall to reach her, and she was taken to the hospital with cuts and bruises.

She had gone to the roof with her ex-husband, daughter and some friends.

Young Americans learn appreciation for freedom

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — "I never thought America was so free," says a young Californian who spent the Fourth of July as a captive in Havana after Cuban forces seized the ketch he was sailing to Panama.

Robert Skafte, his four companions and their 46-foot ketch Musica were released Tuesday.

The U.S. Coast Guard said today two other American sailboats — the Sea Dragon from Miami and an unidentified boat from Orlando, Fla. — also were seized Sunday and were still being held in Cuba.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the Musica was seized in international waters after an unidentified American vessel fired on a Cuban fishing boat.

"The Americans on one of the sailboats were approached by another vessel that they thought was trying to conduct an act of piracy," said Coast Guard Lt. David Nicholson. "So the Americans opened fire on the other ship, and it turned out to be a Cuban vessel.

"Word got back to Cuba that one of their ships had been fired on so the Cubans apparently took out every boat they had and seized every ship within a 50-mile radius of the incident."

Nicholson said it was not known which American boat had fired at the Cuban ship, whether the other two boats also were seized in international waters or when they might be released. He said the other two boats were believed to be carrying two crewmen each.

The Coast Guard said it became aware of the incident when it monitored the Musica's distress signals during the seizure Sunday, a spokesman said.

The Coast Guard said it informed the U.S. State Department of the capture.

The State Department had no immediate comment on the seizure.

Skafte, a 19-year-old student from Newport Beach, Calif., had sailed from Marathon in the Florida Keys on Sunday morning.

Aboard were the ship's owner, Dr. Donald Reidt, a professor of medicine at the University of California-Irvine, and three others who, like Skafte, wanted to learn to sail. They were identified as Paul Holthus, 20, Orange, Calif.; Terry Scott Kohrs, 20, Kansas City, Mo.; and Susan McCarthy, 16, Encinitas, Calif.

Abokt 32 miles off the Cuban shore, Skafte said, a fishing boat approached the Musica.

"We told them we were going to Panama, and they said, 'Adios' and left," Skafte told The Associated Press in a telephone interview Tuesday night.

Suddenly, two jet fighter planes appeared and began making passes over the Musica, "dropping some kind of bomblike things that would make a big noise and water would shoot up," Skafte said. "I thought, 'God, there's some kind of war starting.'"

Two gunboats then approached and the Musica was boarded by a Cuban military officer and four armed men, Skafte said. The Cubans stayed aboard for an 11-hour run into port at Bahia de Cabana.

The Americans were interrogated individually, then driven to Havana and held in a dormitory-like facility, he said. About dawn on July 4, "We had breakfast: soda crackers, water and Cuban coffee," said Skafte.

He said more questions followed. During the day, the Musica crew discovered two other Americans had been taken captive. Skafte, who had been debriefed by Coast Guard officers on arrival in Key West, would not reveal their names.

"They're still down there," he said.

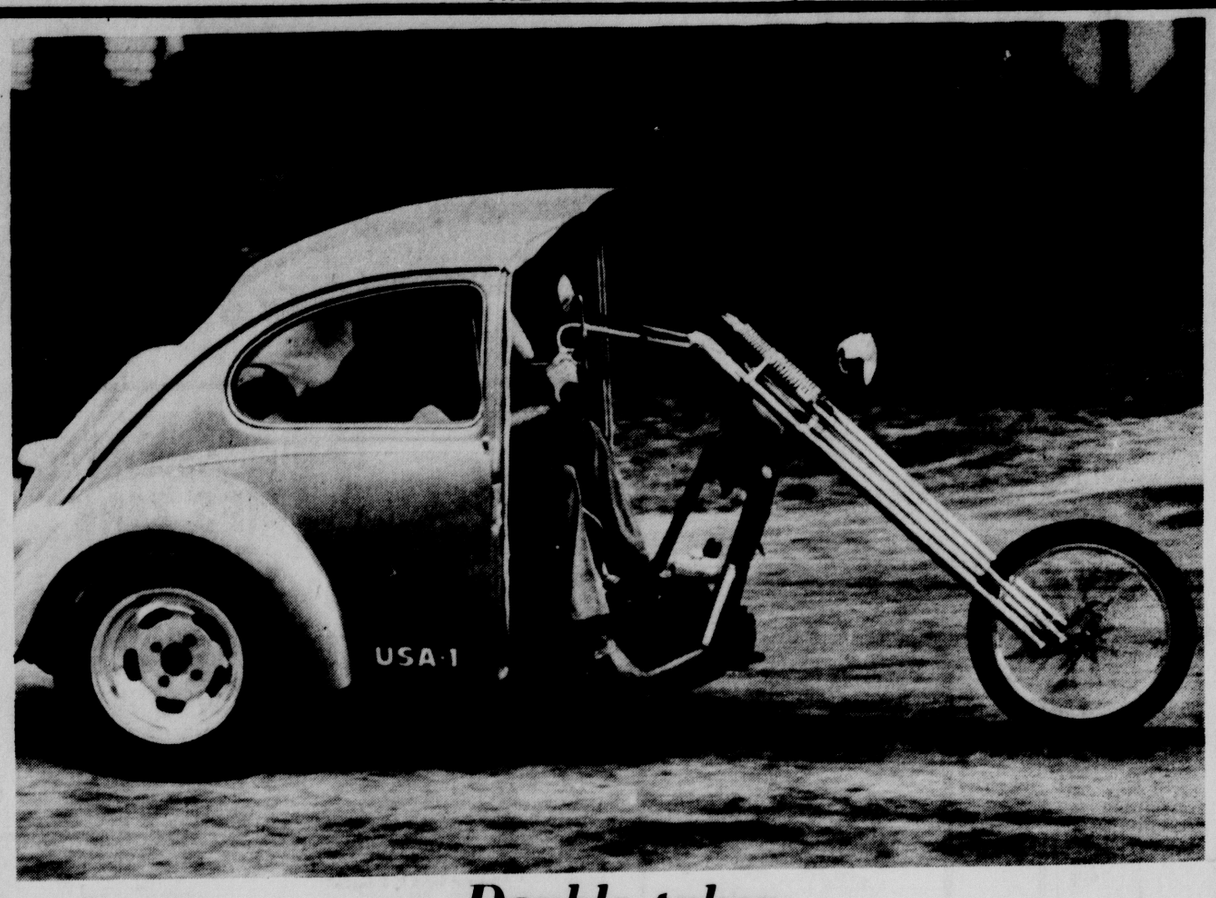

He said he and the others were taken back to the Musica at about midnight Monday.

"We said, we're free. It's the end of Independence Day and we're free," said Skafte.

The Musica radioed the Coast Guard again after being released. The ship arrived at Key West on Tuesday afternoon.

An exhausted Skafte said the experience gave him a new view of democracy. "I'm not glad it happened, but it gave me a chance to appreciate America. I never thought America was so free."

Information Please

The Daily Standard is now gathering information for the publication of an Information Please tabloid, to be included in a regular edition of the newspaper later this month.

In order to make this publication as comprehensive as possible for the four county area, we are asking that all clubs and civic groups send in the names of their groups, meeting dates and times, and current officers and their telephone numbers, so that they may be included.

If your town has an annual festival, celebration or parade, we would like to have all the information available about it, including this year's chairman and phone number, a brief history of the celebration, and the dates and schedule of events for this year. It does not matter if the celebration has already passed for this year, we would still like to have the information.

The publication is to be circulated throughout Scott, Stoddard, Mississippi and New Madrid counties and any organization in this area is invited to submit its information.

Local school administrations in the four county area, are reminded that we need information about your schools. This information was requested several weeks ago, but the response has been slight. To remind public and private school administrators, we need the school classification, 1976-77 enrollment figures, number of faculty members, principals and superintendents names, special achievements of the school teams or representatives, semester starting dates, the year the school was established and a brief history, if available.

Time is growing short and information to be included should arrive at The Daily Standard newsroom, no later than July 12.

Judge confesses wrongs

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas Supreme Court Justice Don Yarbrough admits he has sinned against God and the voters, but says God has forgiven him in a "glorious way." He says he hopes the voters will, too.

Yarbrough — thought to be be the first Texas justice to be indicted for a crime — made no mention of quitting the job he has held for only six months.

In an emotional statement made while on the verge of tears, Yarbrough, 36, told a news conference Tuesday:

"I call you here today in order that I might publicly and without reservation confess to each of you my wrongdoing."

Yarbrough was indicted last Thursday after allegedly forging an Alabama auto registration and license tag receipt and lying to a Travis County grand jury.

The indictment came one day after Harris County Dist. Atty. Carol Vance said he had tapes of conversations linking Yarbrough to a plot to kill former business associate Doug Ford and Victoria banker Bill Kemp, a witness against Yarbrough in another proceeding.

A State Bar of Texas disbarment trial on the allegations that Yarbrough violated the law and the bar's code of ethics is set for Aug. 1, and more than a dozen civil suits have been filed against him. The Texas Judicial Qualifications Commission also is considering whether it should try to remove Yarbrough from the nine-member court.

In addition, Speaker Bill Clayton announced Tuesday the House will consider Yarbrough's removal at a hearing July 15 — four days after the legislature convenes in special session.

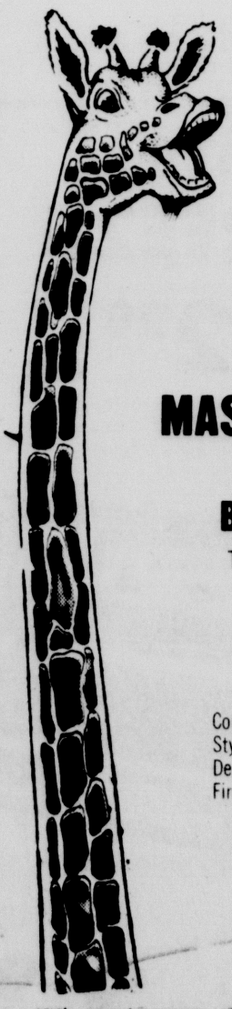

"Without reviewing the substance of my concerns — now so well known to each of you," Yarbrough told reporters, "I want to say that I never intended that anyone be harmed ... it's not in me.

Roommates linked to 28 murders

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — A bloody hacksaw, a carpet and the hair of a pet dog have linked two roommates to at least 28 "trash bag murders," police say.

The items were listed in an affidavit filed by sheriff's deputies which showed that physical evidence taken from the bodies of several murder victims matched items found in the home shared by David Hill and Patrick Kearney, both avowed homosexuals.

The two Redondo Beach men were arraigned Tuesday on two counts each of murder. But Riverside County Sheriff Ben Clark said they might be tied to many more slayings that occurred over a seven-year period.

"There are at least 28," Clark said of the cases being linked to the pair. "There may be more."

He said the estimate came from conversations with the two men, who are talking openly with authorities.

Kearney, a former electronics technician at Hughes Aircraft Corp., led authorities to six alleged grave sites over the weekend.

The sheriff's affidavit indicated that Kearney, 37, and Hill, 34, were first suspected in the series of mysterious murders when a friend of theirs, John LaMay, was found dismembered last March 18.

In an interview with authorities in April, Kearney and Hill said they both had had homosexual relationships with LaMay over a period of two years, the affidavit said.

During that visit, sheriff's deputies obtained samples of dog hairs, carpeting and the men's body hair, which eventually were matched with evidence found on the bodies of LaMay and other victims, the affidavit disclosed.

At the men's home, investigators found a hacksaw coated with dried blood that matched LaMay's blood type, the documents showed.

In May, when authorities were closing in, the affidavit said, the men wrote to Kearney's grandmother in Barstow asking her to sell their house and pay their bills because they were going away.

On May 26, Kearney mailed a letter of resignation and his security badge to Hughes Aircraft.

Authorities say that Hill and Kearney fled to El Paso, Texas, but were persuaded by their families to return and surrender. They walked into Clark's office Friday, pointed at their wanted poster and declared, "We're them."

Clark told a post-arraignment news conference that the men had been advised of their right to remain silent, but had continued to volunteer information about killings, which might reach a total larger than any known mass murder in American history. Previous cases on record include the killings of 25 migrant farm workers by Juan Corona and the murders of 27 teen-aged boys in Pasadena, Texas. Elmer Wayne Henley was found guilty of six of those murders.

The sheriff said the "trash bag murders" were linked by other similarities. All of the bodies were of nude young men; some were dismembered and several were stuffed in plastic trash bags. They were found along highways stretching from Los Angeles to the Mexican border.

Judge Philip LaRocca ordered the men held on $500,000 bail each and set July 15 for a plea hearing. The public defender said he would represent Hill, who is unemployed.

2 children die in car stolen and set on fire

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Two children burned to death today after a car in which they were sleeping was stolen and then apparently deliberately set on fire in southwest Oklahoma City, police said.

Officers said the two children had been left in the car while their father delivered newspapers at an apartment complex.

The two small charred bodies were found about 4:50 a.m. shortly after fire fighters extinguished the burning vehicle.

The victims were tentatively identified as Melissa Isaac, 6, and her brother, Martin, 3.

Officers said the arsonist possibly was not aware the children were in the car when it was set afire.

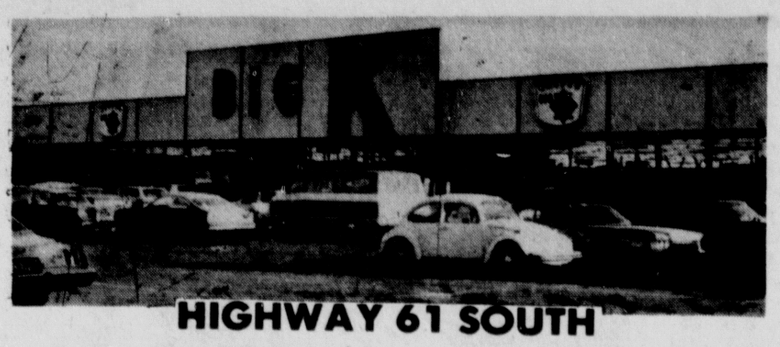

After discovery of the bodies, police launched a search of the quiet neighborhood for a man seen running from the burning car by a passer-by.

Police said they were looking for a 19-year-old man for questioning in the deaths.

Lt. Ted Gregory said the victims' father, Melford Isaac, 25, telephoned police about 4 a.m. after a man fled in his car which had been left idling outside the apartment complex.

Roommates linked to 28 murders

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — A bloody hacksaw, a carpet and the hair of a pet dog have linked two roommates to at least 28 "trash bag murders," police say.

The items were listed in an affidavit filed by sheriff's deputies which showed that physical evidence taken from the bodies of several murder victims matched items found in the home shared by David Hill and Patrick Kearney, both avowed homosexuals.

The two Redondo Beach men were arraigned Tuesday on two counts each of murder. But Riverside County Sheriff Ben Clark said they might be tied to many more slayings that occurred over a seven-year period.

"There are at least 28," Clark said of the cases being linked to the pair. "There may be more."

He said the estimate came from conversations with the two men, who are talking openly with authorities.

Kearney, a former electronics technician at Hughes Aircraft Corp., led authorities to six alleged grave sites over the weekend.

The sheriff's affidavit indicated that Kearney, 37, and Hill, 34, were first suspected in the series of mysterious murders when a friend of theirs, John LaMay, was found dismembered last March 18.

In an interview with authorities in April, Kearney and Hill said they both had had homosexual relationships with LaMay over a period of two years, the affidavit said.

During that visit, sheriff's deputies obtained samples of dog hairs, carpeting and the men's body hair, which eventually were matched with evidence found on the bodies of LaMay and other victims, the affidavit disclosed.

At the men's home, investigators found a hacksaw coated with dried blood that matched LaMay's blood type, the documents showed.

In May, when authorities were closing in, the affidavit said, the men wrote to Kearney's grandmother in Barstow asking her to sell their house and pay their bills because they were going away.

On May 26, Kearney mailed a letter of resignation and his security badge to Hughes Aircraft.

Authorities say that Hill and Kearney fled to El Paso, Texas, but were persuaded by their families to return and surrender. They walked into Clark's office Friday, pointed at their wanted poster and declared, "We're them."

Clark told a post-arraignment news conference that the men had been advised of their right to remain silent, but had continued to volunteer information about killings, which might reach a total larger than any known mass murder in American history. Previous cases on record include the killings of 25 migrant farm workers by Juan Corona and the murders of 27 teen-aged boys in Pasadena, Texas. Elmer Wayne Henley was found guilty of six of those murders.

The sheriff said the "trash bag murders" were linked by other similarities. All of the bodies were of nude young men; some were dismembered and several were stuffed in plastic trash bags. They were found along highways stretching from Los Angeles to the Mexican border.

Judge Philip LaRocca ordered the men held on $500,000 bail each and set July 15 for a plea hearing. The public defender said he would represent Hill, who is unemployed.

2 children die in car stolen and set on fire

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Two children burned to death today after a car in which they were sleeping was stolen and then apparently deliberately set on fire in southwest Oklahoma City, police said.

Officers said the two children had been left in the car while their father delivered newspapers at an apartment complex.

The two small charred bodies were found about 4:50 a.m. shortly after fire fighters extinguished the burning vehicle.

The victims were tentatively identified as Melissa Isaac, 6, and her brother, Martin, 3.

Officers said the arsonist possibly was not aware the children were in the car when it was set afire.

After discovery of the bodies, police launched a search of the quiet neighborhood for a man seen running from the burning car by a passer-by.

Police said they were looking for a 19-year-old man for questioning in the deaths.

Lt. Ted Gregory said the victims' father, Melford Isaac, 25, telephoned police about 4 a.m. after a man fled in his car which had been left idling outside the apartment complex.

Various factors determine which towns receive federal assistance

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Folks in Higbee, Mo., have reason to think Uncle Sam is a rich, kindly old fellow who is willing to spread his wealth around if he's treated properly.

Ih Hillsboro, Kan., though, people are likely to think he's a curmudgeon who won't help anyone who isn't starving to ddeath.

Those towns have been two of the little guys in a game often played best by big guys throughout the United States. They have been competing with other cities for federal funds to improve their lot.

Higbee usually winds. Hillsboro usually loses and wonders why.

Hillsboro, a central Kansas town of 2,943, submitted an application for funds to build a senior citizens housing project.

"It was acceptable but not as highly acceptable as those that were accepted," says Fred Mann, a federal official in Topeka. The money went elsewhere.

Hillsboro also lost when it applied for money to improve its water system and to build a railroad to an industrial park. The city did receive $196,000 for utilities at the industrial park and about $45,000 to improve a swimming pool.

In the past few years, Higbee, a town of 641 in north-central Missouri, has received money to pump water into its homes, send the water down a sewer and, for awhile, pay a man to operate the pumps. The city also received money to hire a deputy marshal and to fix the municipal auditorium for the bicentennial.

"You've just gotta get in there and grab them papers and start filling them out," says Robert Smith, the mayor pro tem of Higbee. "One of our secrets is getting the jump on the other towns."

Smith said Higbee officials try to return applications to federal agencies the day after they are received rather than waiting to send in the forms just before deadlines.

Smith said Higbree received "not a penny" from the federal government until about four years ago when the city began seeking funds.

Since then, Higbee has received $211,000 to build a water towr and make other water system improvements, about $455,000 in grants and loans to build a sewer system, $2,500 to remodel the city auditorium and enough money to hire six temporary employes under a federal jobs program. Higbee has applied for funds to improve a city park and further improve the water system.

"We're not too proud to take any money," Smith says.

He said the city uses Jim Smith, a city manager for several area communities, to learn about funds that may be available from state and federal agencies.

The mayor pro tem said Higbee officials are not reluctant to ask a congressman or senator to help cut red tape. "These guys aren't too big for us," he said.

One reason Higbee was able to get some of the federal money is its relatively high unemployment rate—about 7 per cent. Other things considered by federal agencies are the number of poor people in a community and the availability of money from other sources that could be used to pay for public improvements.

Hillsboro has an unemployment rate of only about 2½ per cent, something Mayor Harold Wiebe can boast about until he asks for federal money. One reason he could not get $35,000 to build a rail link to the town's industrial park is that money from the federal Economic Development Administration (EDA) is allocated first to areas with high unemployment and declining populations.

Wiebe says the people in his town are hard workers and it's not fair to send all the money where unemployment rates are higher. "We just feel like it's time to quit rewarding people for inactivity," he says.

Wiebe was irked when the town's application for $420,000 to improve its outdated water system was turned down. EDA officials wanted to send their money to areas of high unemployment and officials of the Farmers Home Administration thought their money would be better used by rural water districts.

Wiebe complains that federal grant programs are "turned to crisis," designed to combat problems rather than prevent them.

He said he foresees problems for Hillsboro's water system if a plan to get federal money by working with a water district fails. Already, a sprinkler system at a Hillsboro retirement centers does not work because there is not enough water pressure, he said.

Craig Smith, an EDA official in Denver, says Wiebe has a point when he complains that the government won't help keep a nice town nice.

'It's like having a bright child and a retarded child. What do you do with the bright child? Everybody builds schools for the retarded child," he said.

"It's a difficult problem," he said, particularly in boom towns where new industry makes the unemployment rate drop. "I've got places where people are out of work and I've gotta do something about that."

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, July 7, the 188th day of 1977. There are 177 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1846, the American flag was raised at Monterey, California after surrender of the Mexican garrison, and the U.S. annexation of California was proclaimed.

On this date:

In 1801, the black general, Toussaint l'Ouverture, proclaimed Haiti's independence from France.

In 1865, four people were hanged after being named as accomplices of John Wipkes Booth in the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln.

In 1898, the U.S. annexed Hawaii.

In 1941, during World War Two, U.S. forces landed in Iceland to forestall any Nazi invasion.

In 1958, President Dwight Eisenhower signed the Alaska statehood bill.

In 1973, 23 people were executed in Iraq on charges they had plotted to overthrow the government.

Ten years ago: U.S. Vietnam commander William Westmoreland urged the Pentagon to provide up to 100,000 more troops for the Vietnam War and said the Allies were winning slowly but surely.

Five years ago: Heavy rain in many parts of Japan triggered floods and mudslides that caused a death toll of more than 400.

One year ago: The Indonesian government said 9,000 people died in an earthquake in New Guinea.

Today's birthdays: French fashion designer Pierre Cardin is 55 years old. Ringo Starr, formerly of the Beatles is 37.

Thought for today: History is more or less bunk — Henry Ford, 1863-1947.

Today(7-7-77) tops for lucky 7 believers

NEW YORK (AP) — Today, July 7, is 7-7-77. If you put store in numbers, and share the belief that seven is a lucky one, you might think this is your lucky day.

But maybe you'd better think twice.

As reported in the New York Times of July 8, 1877, here are some of the things that happened on the last 7-7-77 — 100 years ago:

— More than 700 unlicensed dogs were drowned by the New York City dog pound, as owners of lost dogs scurried about trying to find their pets. "There was more excitement at the pound yesterday than at any time since its opening," the Times said.

— The German bark Auguste arrived in London "with her bulwarks and stanchions broken, her rigging carried away, and otherwise damaged, having been in collision."

— Otis Hodge's machine shop and foundry at North Adams, N.Y., was destroyed by fire, at a loss of $20,000. He had $8,000 insurance.

— A horse named Idalia stepped up to the starting post at Monmouth Park, N.J., a favorite because she had already bested her competition, Zoo Zoo. But Idalia became uncontrollable, tried to bolt and lost the race before it started. "A more sorrowful looking set of men than Idalia's backers were never seen on a race course," the Times commented.

— Two deputy sheriffs showed up at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Saviour at Madison Avenue and 25th Street to confiscate ornaments, the organ, furniture and the like on behalf of the Rev. Dr. Abraham Carter, the pastor, who said he had not been paid for some time. The church also couldn't open for services the next day, Sunday. On 7-7-77, the deputies had taken the kevs.

— It was a lucky day for Philip Donohue of Elizabeth, who spent six hours buried in a collapsed well the night before but was rescued at just about midnight, as July 7 started.

— But it was the opposite kind of luck for a man named Daniel O'Leary, who chose 7-7-77 as the day on which his boast that he could walk 520 miles in six days would meet the moment of truth. He had been walking for five days already and covered 74½ miles on 7-7-77, but it wasn't enough. Just after midnight, he quit — 48½ miles short.

However, a word of encouragement comes from Robert Ball, director of the Astrological Metaphysical Research Center in Coral Gables, Fla.

A child born today "would be unusally sharp of mind, genius quality," he says.

Ball also says the stock market has risen every July 7th. If that claim is true, some investors will be in seventh heaven today.

Auto makers prepare for '78 models

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp., says it will start phasing out current-model car production July 13 and roll its first 1978-model off the assembly line Aug. 2.

Chrysler said Wednesday that changeovers to new model output at its seven North American car assembly plants will be completed Nov. 21, when the Belvidere, Ill., facility begins producing two new subcompacts.

Ford Motor Co., began its annual changeover last Friday, when it shut its Kansas City compact plant for a month. Ford said changeovers at all of its assembly plants should be completed by early September.

General Motors Corp., said it will begin phasing out current model output at several plants on Friday and will be building only 1978 cars at all of its plants by Sept 2.

American Motors Corp., shut its car plants last Friday for a two-week vacation. AMC said it will begin converting lines for 1978 production when the Kenosha, Wis., assembly plant reopens on July 18, and new-model output will begin Aug. 1.

Plant shutdowns for changeovers can vary from one day to several months depending on how much a vehicle has been changed and whether a model is being built at a facility for the first time.

Hourly workers laid off during the changeover are entitled to special unemployment benefits which, when combined with government jobless pay, equal about 95 per cent of the workers' regular take-home pay.

Chrysler's changeover schedule, includes:

—Newark, Del., and St. Louis, which build compacts, end 1977 output Aug. 5 and begin 1978 output Aug. 15.

—Belvidere, Ill., which builds full-size cars, ends 1977 output July 15 and begins 1978 ouput Nov. 21.

Plan for distributing heating bill aid set

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) - A tenetative plan for using nearly $6 million in federal funds to help low-income people in Missuori pay for their their high heating bills from last winter has been worked out by the state Department of Social Services.

James Bergfalk, the department's deputy director, Wednesday said the agency had completed a tentative plan, which still must be submitted to the federal Community Services Administration for approval.

The state has asked the federal government for $5.8 million to help low-income Missourians meet the cost of their high heating bills during last winter's servere weather.

Bergfalk said the department officials still had to contact suppliers on some of the details of the plan before it would be sent to the federal officials.

"We hope to submit the plan within a week or 10 days and then to get is approved in about a week," the deputy director added.

Under federal guidelines only those people below the poverty level will be eligible for the assistance, he said.

The tentative plan will work on a forumla whereby the low-income residents would be paid the difference between their utility bills from the period of November 1976 through March 1977 and the same period from the year before.

Bergfalk said the money would be paid directly to suppliers and the plan calls for safeguards to avoid fraud.

The federal money would be used to pay the bills for those low-income elderly who were cut off or were about to be cut off, Bergfalk explained.

And those elderly who paid their bills, but who suffered a financial harship because they did, would get a credit toward their utility bills for the coming winter, he said.

For those persons under 65, who are below the poverty level, the funds would be spent for assistance to those who had been cut off or who were slated to have their service cut off, Bergfalk said.

However, he said it would have cost too much money to give a credit toward next winter's bill for those persons under 65 who paid their bills.

Gov. Joseph Teasdale has directed that the funds be used for the poor and near poor—with a priority for those persons over 65.

Teasdale also said he would require all suppliers receiving the funds under the program to "immediately reconnect service" and offer deferred payment arrangements to those customers assisted by the program.

Bergfalk said he hoped the tenetative plan would get final approval from the federal government by the end of July and those prersons who would be eligilbe for the assistance could be identified by the end of August.

Proposed citizen rate would remain 13 cents

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's top postal official says an estimated one letter in five would qualify for a proposed new "citizen rate" on stamps, but admits he doesn't know how many people would "go to the trouble" of meeting the requirements.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar recommended the new rate on Wednesday at a meeting with the Postal Service board of governors. His proposal would retain the present 13-cent stamp for personal letters while raising the cost of a first-class business stamp three cents.

The board of governors meets Monday to vote on the plan. If it approves, the new rates would go to the Postal Rate Commission, which would have 10 months to act.

Under the law, if the commission fails to act within that time, the rates would take effect automatically.

At the board meeting on Wednesday, Bailar also said he hopes to begin ending Saturday mail deliveries and possibly close more small post offices within the next several months.

Strong congressional opposition exists to both moves, but Bailar said,"I think the public will support responsible cost cutting."

He noted a recent poll showing 79 per cent of the public supports five-day delivery if it would keep postage rates from climbing.

Before he decides whether to recommend a five-day delivery schedule, Bailar said, opposition of the postal employes' union leadership must be overcome. Complaints also have surfaced from publishers of weekly newspapers with advertising geared to Saturday delivery.

Postal officials said they expect business groups to challenge the dual-rate plan if it is approved by the two boards.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce said the new rate would delay the eventual cost of higher postage to all users. The plan, the organization said, would amount to "robbing Peter to pay Paul."

But the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers lauded Bailar's proposal. The group said the mails "are the only feasible method of carrying personal correspondence" for many individuals.

The postmaster general listed these requirements for users of the proposed 13-cent rate: either the return or delivery address must be handwritten, both must include zip codes, both places must be in the United States and the envelope must meet size, shape and weight limits of mail handling machines.

Bailar estimated that the discounted rate would affect about 20 per cent of first-class mail.

He said he hoped holding personal letters to the 13-cents-an-ounce rate in effect for the last 18 months would lead to "public acceptance of our cost-cutting measures."

But he acknowleged that inflation could eat up all the savings and that if the books still don't balance, the 13-cent citizen-rate could go up.

Consumer bills among measures signed today

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A measure expanding the authority for the office which represents consumers before the Missouri Public Service Commission was signed into law today by by Gov. Joseph Teasdale.

The bill increasing the authority of the utility consumers' public counsel was the only provision to survive the legispature from the anti-utility package proposed by Teasdale last January . The governor won office on a platform highly critical of utiltiies.

Teasdale also signed a bill ending double taxation by the state of at least $9 million in income because of quirks in the state and federal income tax systems.

Although watered down from its original form, the bill increasing the power of Public Counsel William Barvick is viewed at least as a start at putting that office on an equal footing with the utilities' legal staffs in proceedings before the PSC.

It gives the public counsel clear authority to appeal decision of the commission to the courts, a power questioned by utility firms in the past, and it provides the counsel access to commission information.

It also requires the commission to obtain utility records for the counsel, if he can show justification for needing them.

A key provision of the original bill, financing of the office's operations through asessments on the utilties, was deleted during early debate on the bill.

Supporters claimed that method of financing, which is used to support most of the PSC's operations, was the only way to free the office from political pressure exerted by the legislature through the appropriation process.

In signing the bill, Teasdale said the expanded authority would "help insure that the consumer viewpoint is given greater emphasis in future rate cases."

The income tax system quirks have resulted in the state collecting more than $500,000 a year by taxing the same income twice, according to state Revenue Department officials.

Bryan Ornburn, a department spokesman, said half of those taxpayers affected by the double-tax are actually breaking the law to avoid paying it.

The quirk affects only those Missourians who itemize their deductions and then get a refund on their state income taxes. Under federal law, that must be declared as income on the next year's federal taxes.

Because the state tax system uses the income figure of the federal tax system that refund is then taxed again by th state.

The revision will allow the deduction of any previous year's state tax refund in calculating income subject to Missouri income taxes.

Teasdale also signed bills which would:

—Require group insurance policies to cover treatment for alcoholism.

—Increase the state's share for magistrate court employes' salaries by $2,500 a year.

—Boost the salries for juvenile court offficer to make them comparable statewide.

—Give 2nd Class county sheriffs, auditors and collectors each a $3,000-a-year pay increase.

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp., says it will start phasing out current-model car production July 13 and roll its first 1978-model off the assembly line Aug. 2.

Chrysler said Wednesday that changeovers to new model output at its seven North American car assembly plants will be completed Nov. 21, when the Belvidere, Ill., facility begins producing two new subcompacts.

Ford Motor Co., began its annual changeover last Friday, when it shut its Kansas City compact plant for a month. Ford said changeovers at all of its assembly plants should be completed by early September.

General Motors Corp., said it will begin phasing out current model output at several plants on Friday and will be building only 1978 cars at all of its plants by Sept 2.

American Motors Corp., shut its car plants last Friday for a two-week vacation. AMC said it will begin converting lines for 1978 production when the Kenosha, Wis., assembly plant reopens on July 18, and new-model output will begin Aug. 1.

The postmaster general listed these requirements for users of the proposed 13-cent rate: either the return or delivery address must be handwritten, both must include zip codes, both places must be in the United States and the envelope must meet size, shape and weight limits of mail handling machines.

Bailar estimated that the discounted rate would affect about 20 per cent of first-class mail.

He said he hoped holding personal letters to the 13-cents-an-ounce rate in effect for the last 18 months would lead to "public acceptance of our cost-cutting measures."

But he acknowleged that inflation could eat up all the savings and that if the books still don't balance, the 13-cent citizen-rate could go up.

Consumer bills among measures signed today

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A measure expanding the authority for the office which represents consumers before the Missouri Public Service Commission was signed into law today by by Gov. Joseph Teasdale.

The bill increasing the authority of the utility consumers' public counsel was the only provision to survive the legispature from the anti-utility package proposed by Teasdale last January . The governor won office on a platform highly critical of utiltiies.

Teasdale also signed a bill ending double taxation by the state of at least $9 million in income because of quirks in the state and federal income tax systems.

Although watered down from its original form, the bill increasing the power of Public Counsel William Barvick is viewed at least as a start at putting that office on an equal footing with the utilities' legal staffs in proceedings before the PSC.

It gives the public counsel clear authority to appeal decision of the commission to the courts, a power questioned by utility firms in the past, and it provides the counsel access to commission information.

It also requires the commission to obtain utility records for the counsel, if he can show justification for needing them.

A key provision of the original bill, financing of the office's operations through asessments on the utilties, was deleted during early debate on the bill.

Supporters claimed that method of financing, which is used to support most of the PSC's operations, was the only way to free the office from political pressure exerted by the legislature through the appropriation process.

In signing the bill, Teasdale said the expanded authority would "help insure that the consumer viewpoint is given greater emphasis in future rate cases."

The income tax system quirks have resulted in the state collecting more than $500,000 a year by taxing the same income twice, according to state Revenue Department officials.

Bryan Ornburn, a department spokesman, said half of those taxpayers affected by the double-tax are actually breaking the law to avoid paying it.

The quirk affects only those Missourians who itemize their deductions and then get a refund on their state income taxes. Under federal law, that must be declared as income on the next year's federal taxes.

Because the state tax system uses the income figure of the federal tax system that refund is then taxed again by th state.

The revision will allow the deduction of any previous year's state tax refund in calculating income subject to Missouri income taxes.

Teasdale also signed bills which would:

—Require group insurance policies to cover treatment for alcoholism.

—Increase the state's share for magistrate court employes' salaries by $2,500 a year.

—Boost the salries for juvenile court offficer to make them comparable statewide.

—Give 2nd Class county sheriffs, auditors and collectors each a $3,000-a-year pay increase.
